CAMP HILL — Farmers had their day in Harrisburg this week as 400 members of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association met at the Penn Harris Inn in Camp Hill to review the association's position on pending legislation. After the briefing the group moved in mass into the halls of the state capital to carry their position to senators and representatives. PFA President Keith Eckel of Lackawanna County said, "We took this opportunity to express our grass roots concerns directly to the state legislatures." These local farm leaders conveyed suggestions on how best to handle problems such as road side litter, animal health, farm land preservation, farm commodity promotion, and quarterly tax returns.

On quarterly tax returns the farmers want the wording of the state laws to match federal laws. In addition, in 1980 legislation was passed that would exempt family farm corporations from paying an annual capital tax frachise of 1% on the gross assets. The intent of the act was to cover all aspects of family farming. However the department of revenue chose to interpret the 1980 act as excluding

Winners of county FFA activities this week are Robert Herr, Jr., Eastern Lancaster County, Land Judging and Doyle Reiter, Pequea Valley, Agronomy.

Daylight Saving Starts Tonight

Many farmers don't think daylight saving time saves much daylight. Neverless tonight is the time to move your clocks ahead one hour to keep up with your city friends. The cows will not quite know what's happening when you get them into the milking parlor an hour early but they'll soon adjust. Of course, you'll gain the hour of sleep back next fall.

A light dusting of snow surprised bleary-eyed Lancaster Countians Wednesday morning. Others in the state awoke to several inches, with 18 inches reported in Greentown.

FFA Contest Winners

The Lancaster County FFA Land Judging and Agronomy contests were held Thursday at the farm of David Zimmerman located northwest of Ephrata and the Ephrata Area High School Vo-Ag Department respectively.

In Agronomy Doyle Reiter from the Pequea Valley Chapter won first place with a score of 75 out of a possible 90 points. Doyle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reiter, Narvon R2.

The Land Judging Contest was won by Robert Herr, Jr., from the Eastern Lancaster County Chapter with a score of 330 points out of a possible 400. Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, New Holland R2.

Here are the placings of the Agronomy Contest: 1. Reiter; 2. Dave Cassel, Manheim Central; 3. Jeff Wagner, Manheim Central; 4. Earl Snyder, Manheim Central; 5. John Summy, Manheim Central; 6. Molly Wise, Eastern Lancaster Co.; 7. Dwayne Martin, Eastern Lancaster Co.; 8. Dan Landis, Manheim Central.

Placings in the Land Judging Contest are as follows: 1. Herr; 2.

New branding rules set

HARRISBURG — A temporary restraining order which had been issued suspending the hot branding of animals in the buyout program was lifted this week and new branding regulations released.

The new branding regulations permit a choice between hot and freeze branding.

All animals on a farm participating in the buyout, regardless of the time period in which they are being dispersed, must now be branded by May 6, 1986.

The brand must still be three inches wide and placed on the right jaw. Any animal under 30 days is

Fruit crops survive snowfall

LANCASTER — A surprise snowfall and temperatures more in line with winter than spring greeted many Pennsylvanians Wednesday morning. But despite winter-like conditions, fruit trees in two of the state's top fruit producing counties escaped unharmed.

"I think we were spared because the temperature didn't drop to the level that would do damage,"

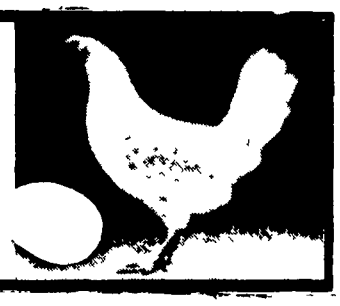
POULTRY MARKETS



Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, April 24, 1986

Market Comment: Movement of ready to cook whole birds was moderate to moderately good and clearances were particularly maintained on the three pound and lighter sizes. Demand for cutlets continued to keep supplies well-cleared. Retail interest on rib-on-breast was declining. However, the overall call for breast meat was good. Demand for legs and particularly leg quarters improved in some plants, while others continued to discount in an effort to stimulate movement. Wings remained ample and difficult to clear. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52-60 cents. Live supplies were moderate. Weights were mostly desirable to heavier than desired. Slaughter schedules were moderate. The undertone was steady.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Thursday, April 24, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged on large and extra large, unchanged to lower on mediums. Demand was very mixed within the range of light to occasionally good and mainly centered on the large sizes. Retail promotional activity was spotty for both this and next week's period. Graded supplies were in close balance to fully adequate on large and extra large. Local supplies of mediums were unevely balanced but the overall availability was quite heavy for current needs. Nest run interest remained centered on tightening supplies of class ones.

OPINION

Now it's lite beef

Next time you walk into a restaurant and ask for a "lite" you may not necessarily get a beer or a cigarette. You may get an eight ounce strip-loin beef steak. That's what Swift Company calls their new cut of meat made available to the food industry about three months ago. Company spokesmen say this steak caters to young people who are health diet conscious and is available nationwide. Taken from lean ungraded (no roll) carcasses that are aged 21 days, the steaks are then trimmed down further so that the final product has 33% less fat and 25% fewer calories.

So far the jury is still out on the public's acceptance of the lite beef steaks. One major hotel chain now carries the product on their menu. The banquet staff has been instructed of the new food, and information flyers have been placed on the restaurant tables. But so far the response has not been overwhelmingly favorable. People have ordered the steaks but some don't think it has as good a flavor as a regular steak.

Maybe the public just needs to develop their taste for the lite beef. Or maybe it's just a matter of education. But at least we have another creative way to market farmer-produced food and everyone involved in this kind of creativity should be congratulated for their efforts.

When farmers speak

The word passed around Capital Hill in Harrisburg Tuesday claims that the Pennsylvania Farmers Association presents one of the strongest legislative voices in Pennsylvania. You might say when PFA speaks congress listens.

Of course, PFA has a very professional and efficient legislative and public relations staff. They do their job superbly. But the real strength of their voice comes from the individual farm members from every county in the state. These farmers leave their plowing, planting, feeding, and milking for a day and become informed of the issues that will effect their business and family life as farmers. They put on their Sunday clothes even though it's Tuesday (that probably only happens once a year about this time) and go personally to the offices of members of the state house and senate.

While their stand on issues is pro farmer, we've noticed that often their views reflect a concern not only for themselves but also for city and urban people as well. Our applause goes to the men and women of PFA who took the farm message to the state government with the proper mix of strength and empathy. We call it a job well done.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Prepare For Corn Planting

It always seems like we are in the full swing of the spring rush by the time daylight savings time arrives. Well, this year is no exception. We are fast approaching corn planting time and if your planter is not "ready to go" then put this high on your list for jobs that must be done.

If you plan to change the row width, be sure to calibrate your planter to the plant population you desire. This should be done well ahead of time — so if you need new plates — they can be picked up and installed. Also your pest control programs should be worked out.

If you are on a no-till program and have a cover crop of rye, wheat or barley, then it should be sprayed when the vegetation is 18 to 24 inches tall. Paraquat plus a surfactant does an excellent job.

As far as insect control goes, research data collected from numerous sites over the past several years indicates that soil insecticide treatments for corn rootworm control have not significantly increased yields except in a small percentage of the fields. If rootworm was not a problem in the past, treatment will not be necessary. If the field was in anything but corn last year, there would not be a rootworm problem because they survive only on corn roots.

To Condition Cows For Summer

All cows and breeding-age heifers should be vaccinated for Lepto at least once a year, and spring is a good time to do this. Deworn heifers three to six weeks after being turned out to pasture.

The second worming, three weeks after the first, is crucial to success; it, along with keeping unwormed cattle out of the pasture, can greatly reduce the worm count of the pasture. An alternative to double worming is the use of sustained-release boluses.

If pink eye has been a problem, consider vaccinating for it, and control face flies to help prevent its spread. Keep cattle out of wet areas to prevent mastitis and foot problems. If necessary, use foot baths as an additional preventative measure.

To Evaluate Sewage Sludge Before Using

Many farmers are being approached to have sewage sludge applied to their land. Several things must be evaluated before considering this step. First of all, many of our farms are presently producing more animal and poultry manure than they have land to apply it on, so we just don't have the acreage.

You should also be aware of potential pitfalls in sewage sludge. Sludge is a by-product of wastewater treatment and can contain many different elements and compounds from municipal and industrial sources. The wastewater goes through several stages of treatment, but the sludge that is removed from the effluent may contain heavy metals and trace elements such as copper, zinc, lead, nickel, chromium or cadmium. These elements can be toxic to plants at low levels and some represent a hazard to the food chain.

To avoid heavy metal or other problems, sludges must be analyzed to determine their suitability. Ideally, your soil should also be tested. Sludge and soil testing is absolutely essential for the safe and beneficial use of sewage sludge on cropland. Costs of analyses are usually paid by the municipality involved.

To Think Ryelage

Many farmers plant rye as a forage crop for their cattle. Rye can provide a lot of much needed high quality forage — if it is handled properly. For top quality feed value, rye should be cut around the boot stage of maturity, and wilted before ensiling. After this stage, feed value drops rapidly. Some of our rye fields will be heading out soon. That means we should be thinking about cutting rye, perhaps even before we start planting corn.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHERE THE DEVIL IS...
April 27, 1986

Background Scripture: Luke 3:15-22; 4:1-30.
Devotional Reading: Luke 4:1-13.

I cannot tell you how many times I've read the account of Jesus' temptation as recorded in Luke 4 (as well as Mark 1 and Matthew 4). But it is a passage with which I am quite familiar and whose meaning I assumed I fully grasped (always a dangerous assumption!). Yet, as I reread it today in preparation for writing this piece, it suddenly dawned on me that there was something in this passage that previously had escaped me.

Like many others, I have always labeled this passage, Luke 4:1-15, as "the Mount of Temptation," the account of Jesus' victorious encounter with the Devil as Tempter. Furthermore, I've always identified with Jesus' experience with the Tempter because temptation is one of the most common of human experiences. I am tempted. Everyone is tempted. Jesus was tempted. And because he was able to win over the Tempter, so you and I can apply his response to our own situations.

SPIRIT LED

Still, the Mount of Temptation has always carried an ominous, fearful connotation. True, Jesus was victorious over the Tempter, but then he was Jesus and I am me. And I cannot help wondering whether the gulf between being me and being him is not too great to allow me confidence in approaching my own Mount of Temptation and the Tempter who waits for me there.

Yet, today I discovered that the Mount of Temptation does not belong to the Devil. To be sure, he is there, always, but so is the Holy Spirit! How could I have previously seen only the Tempter in this encounter? Luke clearly reveals the presence of the Tempter's adversary: "And Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan, and was led by the Spirit for 40 days in the wilderness tempted by the devil" (4:1). Jesus encountered the devil in the wilderness, but he entered that experience "full of the Holy Spirit" and was "led by the Spirit." And when it was all over, Jesus "returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee..." (4:14). In Jesus' experience, where there was the devil, there was even more the power of the Holy Spirit.

AND OPPORTUNE TIME

And what about our Mounts of Temptation? If, when we approach them, we see only the Tempter lurking there to test us, then the battle may be over for us before it has even begun. After all, who can contend against the power of the devil? We are mere mortals! And the Mount of Temptation is the devil's home ground!

But is it really? The experience of Jesus indicates that the Mount of Temptation is the home field of the Holy Spirit and it is the devil who is the interloper. When we are tempted, then, let us look not to the Tempter, but to the Holy Spirit who can lead us, as he did Jesus, safely through this experience and bring us out on the other side "in the power of the Spirit" for whatever Galilees await us.

For, where the devil is, there even more is the Holy Spirit who can victoriously empower us as he did Jesus.

FACT

PROWL® attacks weeds through the root and shoot for 2-way protection in conservation tillage.

PROWL® herbicide is the one to use in conservation tillage. It's more photostable, less volatile and less water soluble than some other herbicides. So PROWL stays put, to attack grasses and broadleaf weeds in the root and shoot all season long. PROWL gets the weeds other herbicides can miss in surface residue without increasing the rate. So for excellent control of 20 grasses and broadleaf weeds, we recommend PROWL It's right for conservation tillage.

Strasburg hosts National Milking Shorthorn Convention

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

STRASBURG — The American Milking Shorthorn Society recently held their National Convention at the Historic Strasburg Inn.

Breeders from over 27 states and three countries gathered to renew old acquantances and return to the site of one of their best remembered conventions ten years ago. They discussed the current state of their society and how to enhance the future of this versatile breed.

They toured an Amish farm and saw a demonstration of working milking shorthorn steers. The annual meeting featured awards and a panel discussion on Genetic Expansion. The annual banquet witnessed the crowning of a new Milking Shorthorn Queen and the selling of a Milking Shorthorn quilt.

Dr. Dave Selner of 21st Century Genetics, Rex Powell of the USDA in Maryland, and Stuart Rowe is Innisfail Farm in California participated in a panel discussion concerning the Society's Genetic Expansion program.

All of the panel members agreed that this program is valuable for the improvement of the breed, but it must be used wisely and in moderation.

"It's a progressive move," Powell said. "We want what is best for the breed and must take advantage of what's available," he continued. He also suggested the very best to be the top six red and white bulls.

"We have to go with what we are paid for or what we will be paid for, and that appears to be pounds not percentages," Powell added when explaining what to consider when looking at a bull's proof.

Selner pointed out that the A.I. industry is looking for genetic advancement and needs to know where the breeder wants to make these advances. By knowing this the industry can proceed to select for these traits.

Cautioning that "there is no such thing as a perfect bull," Selner reminded breeders not to try to improve too many points with one mating. This will decrease the amount of improvement made in any one area, he noted.

When determining what outside bull to use, Selner suggested considering the economic importance of each trait to be corrected as well as maintaining breed characteristic.

"We wasted time by not using outside blood more often in our breeding," Rowe said. He also reminded breeders of the importance of maintaining the breed's identity.

Rowe suggested that for every one outside bull that is approved for use with Milking Shorthorn, a purebred bull should be added.

"This is our best chance to make genetic progress and remain competitive," Rowe added. However, he continued, a better system is needed to evaluate this progress.

President Harold Krause reported that the board approved using a full-time executive assistant in their new office in Beloit, WI. This econimic action also moves the executive secretary-treasurer to a part-time position.

This past year the Society also moved their office into the Brown Swiss office in Beloit. Here they will be able to utilize the computer and perhaps the classifiers of the Swiss Association.

Krause noted these changes have aided in returning the society to a more stable financial situation.

Fred Slatter from Australia was honored for his continous efforts to bring the best blood of the Illawara breed into America to strength the genetic pool of the Milking Shorthorn.

The 1986 National Milking Shorthorn Queen crowned at the banquet was Trudy York from Maine.

Following the banquet 28 items from across the country were auctioned off for a total of $2,566. This sale featured the Milking Shorthorn quilt with a cow and four calves. This quilt was handmade by Maryjane Stoltzfus and Reba Yoder from Berks County and sold for $900 to Mike and Bobbi Rauch of Billings MO.

A positive attitude about the financial and genetic progress of the Society was present at the convention. Those in attendance were assured that the Society is on the right path to financial stability and that the breed will survive.

The 1987 convention is set for Wisconsin.

Day one of the National Milking Shorthorn Association's annual convention in Lancaster featured a working steer demonstration by members of the Franklin County 4-H Working Steer Club. The club's 14 members, from Farmington, ME, put this pair of steers through their paces for those attending Thursday's activities.

Pacesetter daughter tops sale

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

STRASBURG — The top selling animal at the National Milking Shorthorn sale was Wilder Farm Laurie. She sold for $2,050 to Kingsdale Farm in Onida, IL and was consigned by Sam Yoder, Shoemakersville.

This three-year-old cow was sired by the top bull in the breed, Korncrest Pacesetter. Her dam, Wilder Farm Lynne, is classified VG-85.

Second high selling animal was Spruce Hill RS Aubry EXP. Consigned by J. Douglas Marsh, she sold for $1,625 to A-Grand-View Farm, Strasburg.

This bred heifer from Class Reunion is due in June to Bettina's Promise. Her dam produce a record of 19,123 pounds of milk with a 4.2 percent test as a six-year old.

Next in the bidding was Wildwood Dixie Leah. This bred heifer sold for $1,200 to Bill Harris of Illinois. She was consigned by Eldo Bentley of Minnesota.

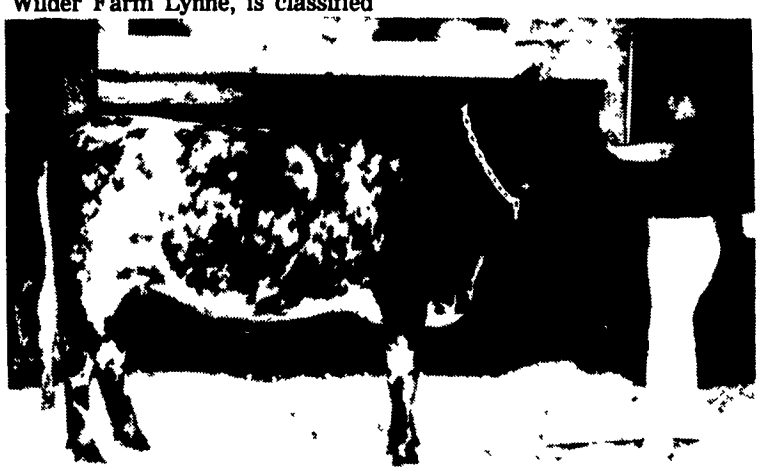
The unofficial average on 35 lots was $922. The 12 bred heifers averaged $954 and the 13 cows averaged $1,158.

These averages are down from what was anticipated since Pennsylvania would not allow several animals in from Class C states. It was the animals that were prevented from entering the state that were expected to top the sale.

Executive Secretary Ellsworth commenting on this development stated, "Pennsylvania was not reasonable. We guaranteed that all the animals would pass every test they would require. They were more intent on enforcing the rules to the letter and would not allow these animals in."

"Inspite of this, we will come back anytime. It's impossible to have a bad time in Pennsylvania," Ellsworth added.

The sale was sponsored and managed by the American Milking Shorthorn Society. Auctioneer for the day was Abe Diffenbach, president of New Holland Sales.



Second highest selling animal at $1,625 was Spruce Hill RS Aubry EXP. She was consigned by J. Douglas Marsh and purchased by A Grand View Farm. Chris Young is at the lead.

State participation in the buyout 'fairly low'

Participation in the Milk Production Termination Program (MPTP) will be fairly low in Pennsylvania. Only 418 dairy farmers, or about 3% of the total number of dairy farmers, had their bids accepted by the USDA. The 1985 milk marketings of these 418 farmers was about 271 million pounds. These farmers will receive about $42 million for ceasing production for 5 years and selling 20,614 cows; 7,314 heifers and 5,386 calves. Assessments on Pennsylvania dairy farmers who remain in production which will be used to help pay for the cost of the MPTP will amount to about $47 million. Thus, at least with respect to Pennsylvania, the MPTP program is more than self-supporting. In the 1st period, 265 dairy farmers or 63%, are required to cease production and sell their animals by August 31, 1986. They will sell 12,260 cows; 4,171 heifers and 3,043 calves which should reduce milk production in 1986 by about 158 million pounds. Fifty-nine dairy farmers will sell out in the 2nd period and 94 will sell out in the 3rd period both of which will be in 1987.

The distribution of farmers entering the MPTP is fairly evenly spread across the state with 59 of the 67 counties having at least one farmer participating in the program. Lancaster has the highest number of farmers entering the program with 27. Susquehanna is second with 23, followed by Somerset with 22, Tioga with 21, Erie and Crawford each with 18 and Wayne with 17. Chester, Berks, Bucks, York, Wyoming, Washington and Franklin counties will each have from 10 to 15 farmers participating in the program. Only 4 counties (Elk, Bucks, Cambria and Lackawanna) will have a greater than 10% decrease in the number of dairy farms. There are 15 counties which will have a decrease in farm numbers from 5 to 10%. Several of these are among the largest dairy counties, in terms of farm numbers, in Pennsylvania. These are Somerset, Susquehanna, Wayne and Tioga counties. Since the participation and subsequent decrease in farm numbers will be fairly uniform, the dairy industry and its service industries should not suffer greatly from the participation of Pennsylvania dairy farmers in the MPTP.

Another important aspect of participation in the MPTP in Pennsylvania is the size of herd of the participants. On average, they were somewhat smaller than the state average herd size of 53 cows at the time they submitted their bids. This is attested to the fact that, although almost 3% of Pennsylvania dairy farms are participating, they account for only about 2.8% of Pennsylvania's 1985 marketings. The herd size of the 418 participants ranged from 4 to 708 cows. Only 4 farms had herds with 200 or more cows, 22 farms had herds which ranged from 100 to 199 cows, 38 farms had herds which ranged from 75 to 99 cows and 35 farms had herds which ranged from 60 to74 cows.

Another factor, which may prove to be important to the dairy industry in the future, is how many of the 418 farmers were financially stressed. If only a few of all those under financial stress had bids accepted, there may be significant additional decrease in the number of farmers outside of the MPTP program because they cannot handle the continuing cost-price squeeze in the future. When all the dust finally settles, the Pennsylvania dairy industry may be better off in the future as a result of the MPTP. Pennsylvania's lower level of participation relative to the rest of the U.S. (except for Nevada) suggests an underlying strength in the industry that should bode well for the Pennsylvania dairy industry for whatever lies in the future.

Maryland Eastern Shore welcomes York Holstein tour

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

EASTERN SHORE, MD — York County Holstein breeders took a "busman's holiday" April 9, visiting four Maryland dairying operations for their annual spring farm tour.

Three of the four stops were at the diversified setups of Fair Hill Farms, near Chestertown. Fair Hill began operations on Eastern Shore in 1960, when the Ed Fry family moved across the Chesapeake Bay from Montgomery County.

Largest of the Fry family's three operations is Fair Hill Dairy, where 540 head are milked three times daily. The "home farm" still maintains a herd of 60 head, while another 60 investor animals are handled at the Churn Creek leased facility.

All three herds are included together for DHIA purposes, with a total of 758 head on the March test, with a rolling herd average of over 19,600 of milk and 700-plus fat. With replacements, Fair Hill totals some 1500 head of cattle, three-quarters of them registered.

While milk production efficiency earns top attention at Fair Hill, type is not slighted. The most recent classification, in March, resulted in 26 Excellents, 150 Very Goods, 162 Good Plus, and 133 Goods. Classification average on the 469 head scored was 82.4, for a BAA of 103.4.

Host and tour guide for the visit was Ed Fry, Jr., who along with his father and brother operates Fiar Hill Farms, Inc. A third brother in an area veterinarian.

Fair Hill Dairy, the large commercial-type facility, with its more than 500 milking animals, was built in 1980 by Agri, Inc. of Ephrata.

"Feeding, breeding, and milking cows is the objective here," says Fry. Emphasis has always been on efficiency, and the facility was designed to maximize cow flow and minimize handling. A staff of eight maintains operations at the large dairy, with a total Fair Hill staff of 35, including a 4-man construction crew and two office employees.

The double-ten parlor is in use 22 hours per day, with one milker handling each of the shifts. A spray wash system in the large holding area preps cows prior to milking, and udders on all but the first few in each group are air-dried by their turn in the parlor.

Manure is flushed from the holding and free stall areas with recycled water held in 30,000 gallon tanks. Flush water in turn is caught in a storage lagoon and recycled onto the crop ground. Other energy-savings come from well-water tube cooling of milk and equipment heat recovery systems efficient enough to allow total hot water needs of the dairy to be handled through a 120-gallon water heater.

All health and reproductive work on the herd is handled in a lockup stanchion area, and a hospital area includes manger lockups. A Delvo test for antibiotic contamination is run on every treated animal before she is removed from the treated group. Every tank of milk is also Delvo checked before being loaded on the farm's transport tanker.

Cows at the large dairy are grouped by production, with the high group averaging 135 pounds/day. Second herd averages 92 pounds, third group is at 72 pounds, and the 2-year-old group of 130 head is averaging 67 pounds. One two-year-old topping the group milked 110 pounds in just her second month of production.

Roger McKnight, herd manager, is the nutrition specialist, utilizing a computer to keep rations fine-tuned for each production grouping. The Total Mixed Ration is based on an 80 percent corn silage and 20 percent haylage blend, with roasted beans and ground barley.

"We go for the 'best cost' ration, not necessarily the 'least cost,'" stressed McKnight. Cottonseed, distillers grain or soy hulls may also be integrated in the ration, depending on commodity markets. Bunker silos and a commodity shed allow for volume handling of feedstuffs. Minerals are custom formulated, including the use of chelated types.

McKnight is sold on the benefits of barley in the ration over the traditional use of corn.

"We stay away from using too much starch from the same feed source," he elaborated. "Every time we go to using shelled corn we see a drop in production." Because cows in the Fair Hill Dairy herd are under heavy production stress, McKnight keeps ration levels of beans and fats higher than is usually recommended by nutritionists.

About three years ago, he tried to obtain a supply of an isoacid milk booster additive, but was unable to find a source. So, McKnight developed his own blend, and dubbed it "Bio Boost." He's now marketing the product in selected areas, and acknowledges that the production booster is working.

Results in the herds he's been working with show production increases of 3-5 pounds per cow, usually in three weeks or less, at a cost of about twenty cents per cow per day. McKnight attributes the performance of the production boosting product to an increase in the saliva production in the cow's mouth, which in turn carries through the digestive process to more efficiently utilize the feed nutrients.

The lack of grain and decrease in forage particle size in manure attests to that theory. In addition, McKnight sees the isoacid product also working as a preservative for feedstuffs, allowing forages to remain palatable for a longer period of time once they are exposed to air.

Crop production includes 3600 acres, about 40 percent of that to supply herd feedstuffs, and the remaining for diversified grain production.

The sixty head herd at the Fair Hill home farm are milked twice daily in a double-four parlor. All cows for the farm complex are calved out at this facililty, between 60 to 85 head monthly.

Hutches, up to 75 in use at a time, house baby calves until weaning, when they are grouped and held until about fourteen weeks of age. A custom raiser than takes over calves, until they are returned for breeding, either by A.I. or as embryo transfer recipients. Once bred, heifers again go to a custom raiser.

Transfer work plays a large part in Fair Hill's merchandising program with about 200 E.T.'s done annually. All ET work is by fresh transfer, and non-surgical implantation. High pedigreed virgin heifers are often flushed, and up to forty percent of the total ET recipients are mature cows from the Fair Hill Dairy.

High indexed Excellent and Very Good individuals comprise a group bred to high TPI sires, with the aim of continuing and building "numbers." A second breeding group includes good type cows with indexes of $35 and under. Sires are selected to improve type and build indexes in succeeding generations.

A third group is comprised of Good Plus and Good individuals, below herd scoring averages, but the "bread and butter" producers of the herd. Established sires whose popularity has lessened are crossed to this grouping.

Remaining cattle not meeting the above standards are bred to young sires, if offspring are wanted for replacements, or used as transfer recipients.

Fair Hill's "elite" cows are kept at the leased Churn Creek barn, which houses 54 head of top-indexed, pedigreed investor animals. Four individuals are contracted for foreign frozen ET sales, and ten either already have or have potential for sons in AI organizations.

Final visit was to a new Eastern Shore establishment, still in the process of building a herd of high type, production and index cattle.

Pintail Point Farms is located near Queenstown, on a point of land projecting out into the Wye River, which flows into the Chesapeake Bay. The farm was acquired some years ago by Baltimore automobile dealership owner Louis M. Schaefer, as a hunting and fishing getaway. In fact, the farm's name comes from the Pintail ducks which frequent the waters of the Wye.

Schaefer felt the dairy barn on the property should be utilized, and purchased a small commercial herd. After becoming interested in purebred cattle, he chose to instead begin establishing a top herd of registered stock. Walter Johnson, a former purebred Guernsey breeder, and his wife Carol, who grew up with registered Holsteins, were hired to put together and manage a new Pintail Point herd. Two additional full-time employees complete the staff.

In January of 1985, construction crews began remodeling the old facility. On Christmas Eve the herd was moved into a new tiestall barn, complete with paneled office and board room amenities.

Goal is a herd of 70 head, with 45 currently in the milking string. Foundation Holstein stock has been acquired from various state and national sales, Fair Hill Farms and 21 head of high indexed individuals at the November Kingstead Farms dispersal.

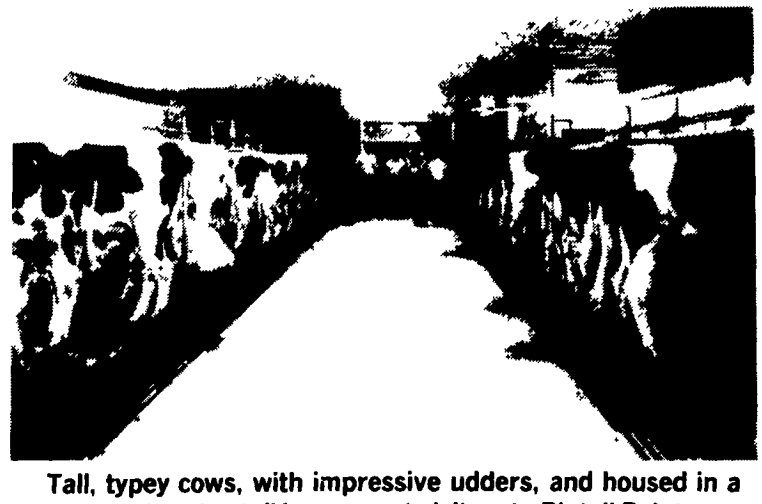
Breeding program at Pintail Point focuses on crossing to strengthen individual cow weaknesses, while selecting traits that will fit anticipated future industry markets for fat and protein.

"We're shooting for a four percent test and higher protein," affirms Johnson. That means cows get feedings of first and second cutting alfalfa hay, some corn silage, high moisture corn and a 29 percent protein concentrate.

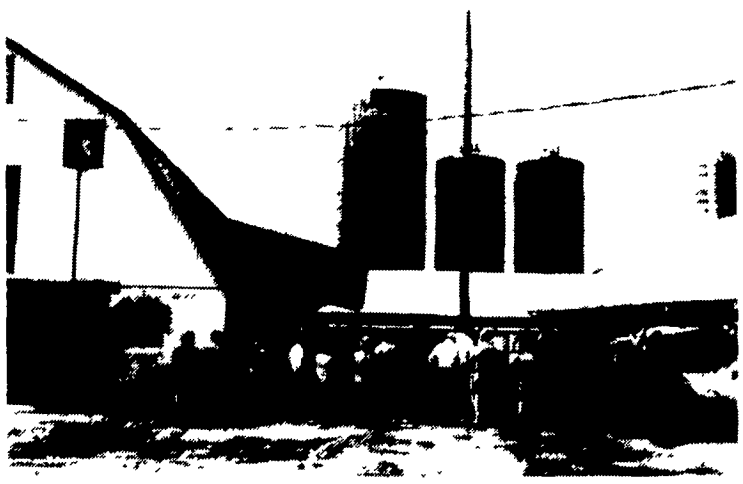
A unique feature of the Pintail Point barn is a small, closet-like, "washup" room, where milking equipment is cleaned away from the usual milkhouse site. In fact, the barn was constructed for entrance direct to the stall barn, not through the milk house, which is offset via a hallway.

In planning is a baby calf unit, immediately outside and protected by a roof extension from the stall barn. Construction is also underway for a new heifer facility.

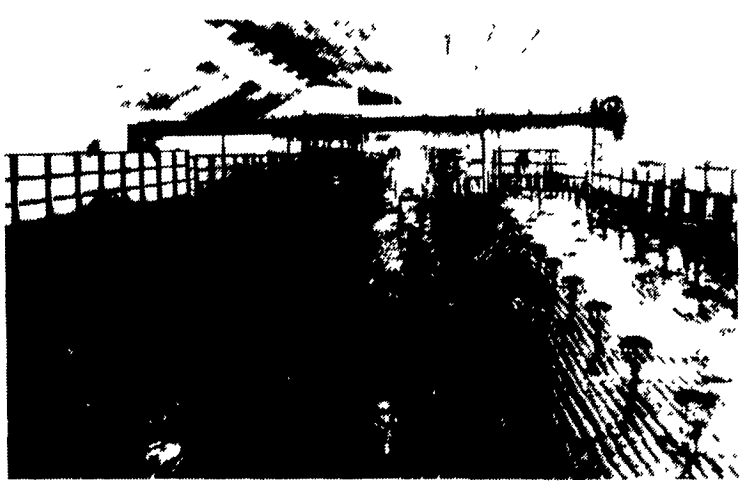
Pintail Point, near Queenstown, is owned by Baltimore automobile executive Louis Schaefer. The farm is located on a point of land projecting into the Wye River, which flows into the Chesapeake Bay.



Tall, typey cows, with impressive udders, and housed in a spotless, airy, tie-stall barn, greet visitors to Pintail Point.



"Home farm" at Fair Hill was a traditional hip-roofed stall barn, with freestalls, young stock facilities, feeding complex, and storage units added on since the Fry family moved here in 1960.



Cows crowd this milking parlor holding area at Fair Hill Dairy for 22 hours each day. As they wait, the "rainbirds", or spray nozzles, installed in the foreground, wash udders before the cows enter the double-ten parlor at the rear of the holding pen.

Calf hutches, up to 75 in use at a time, house replacements at Fair Hill. In the background is part of the irrigation system for the 3600 acres and a bred heifer facility with wooded pasture.

National Ayrshire Convention held in Pennsylvania

GRANTVILLE — They came in record numbers from across the country to Pennsylvania, and what could be called the heart of Ayrshire country, for the 111th National Ayrshire Convention.

They toured four impressive Pennsylvania Ayrshire herds and an Amish farm in the first two days of the Convention. These tours included a stop at the top Ayrshire herd in the country, Ardrossan Farms, Villanova.

This farm was a drawing card for some to attend the convention as one Iowa breeder explained, "Seeing Ardrossan was one of my goals, it's incredible."

At Ardrossan they were able to witness first hand the management practices, the cows, and the setting of this outstanding herd.

Day three was the Annual Meeting of the Ayshire Breeders.

Outgoing president Raymond Jarratt, Los Lunas, NM, addressed the group briefly at the start of the meeting. His opening remarks included, "The dairy climate is unhealthy and this is our last chance to correct the surplus situation. It is now up to us to hold milk production down."

He urged the breeders to write their Congressman supporting production control legislation in order to stabilize milk prices and supplies.

"We must register, test and classify in our herds, as well as promote the use of young sires if we are to survive as an organization," Jarratt added.

The financial status of the organization is the best it has been in recent year First Vice President, Ed Whitehead, explained. This status was accomplished through budget and staff cuts. They recently went to an operations officer and eliminated the position of executive secretary.

Another cost cutting procedure involved changing computer services. They are now sharing Holstein Association's computer in Brattleboro, VT.

They are also considering using Holstein classifiers to classify Ayrshires.

When brought up for discussion, this subject was met with mixed reactions from the group. While it would prove to be to their economic advantage to approve this action, many expressed apprehensions that the Ayrshire cow could loose her distinctive breed characteristics in this venture.

The subject was sent to the board of directors to be decided upon.

Another topic discussed at length concerned delinquent accounts. At present, the Association has over $25,000 in Accounts Receivable.

The Bylaws Committee was instructed to review and establish policy concerning ways of keeping business current.

The past year also witnessed the elimination of the PTE program. The board decided that three programs were not necessary and the two remaining, DHIR and Types Traits Appraisal, would be adequate.

By only making two programs available, they are anticipating more participation. Although it is not ideal, the board felt the change was financially feasible.

In other business, the results of the elections were announced prior to the start of the semen sale. The new officers for the Ayrshire Association are: Ed Whitehead, Connecticut, president; John Dalton, Wisconsin, first vice president; and Ralph Shank, Maryland, second vice president.

One of the highlights of the Convention is the Awards program.

This year's awards were dominated by Ardrossan Farms. They were the recipient of the French Trophy for Highest Record Herd of 75 to 99 Cows. Their average on 96 cows is 20,708 pounds of milk M.E. with a four percent test.

Four Ardrossan cows were recognized for production in excess of 25,000 pounds of milk, and 24 cows additional Ardrossan cows were noted as having produced between 20,000 and 25,000 pounds of milk.

The C. M. Rodriguez and C. B. Skiff Memorial trophy was awarded to Ardrossan Farms for the highest 305 day 2X milk production in an individual lactation and their seven-year old Ardrossan Classic Pearlina. She produced 29,710 pounds of milk.

Ardrossan Farms was also recognized as having the highest DHIR record, 31,322 pounds of milk M.E. 2X with a four percent test.

They were also the recipients of three 150,000 pound certificates. Earl Keefer and Donald Shetterly also received a 150,000 pound certificate.

Four Pennsylvania herds qualified for the Constructive Breeder Award: Delaware Valley College, second year; Ardrossan Farms, 26th year; Pennsylvania State University, 27th year; and Charles H. Gable, 28th year.

Samuel Morris, state representative, presented Mrs. Hope Scott with a commendation from the House of Representatives for being the top Ayrshire herd in the Nation.

The outstanding youths for 1986 were Adam Presby, New Hampshire and Cherie Engelbrecht, New York.

The top senior dairy bowl team was from New York state. Team members included: Jim Ward, Cherie Engelbrecht, Marlene Haynes and Scott Haynes. The Pennsylvania team of Wesley Harding, Katrina Clevenger, Becky Alsdorf and Steve Shetterly were runners-up.

Winning the junior division was Pennsylvania's entry consisting of Melissa Edwards, Michele Lyons and Donna Shetterly.

The Convention's Ladies' Program included a presentation by Mrs. Hera Wilson and her early American antiques. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are retired dairy farmers who have an extensive collection of antiques ranging from cherry pitters to apple peelers and butter churns.

Winners of the Constructive Breeder Award were: (left) Dr. Larry Specht, Penn-State University; Charles Gable, Conebella Farms; Heinz Meilke, Ardrossan; and Jerry Myers, Delaware Valley College.

Mrs. Hope Scott (left) and Heinz Meilke display some of the numerous awards that the Ardrossan herd accumulated at the National Convention.

At the conclusion of the banquet an auction of Ayrshire items was held.

The friendship quilt, which consisted of 72 blocks from Ayrshire farms and farm organizations in the state. This quilt sold for $900 to Sue Edwards.

A nursery rhyme quilt, made by Grace Seidel and Adalyn Hunter, sold for $500 to Mrs. Raymond Jarratt.

The 1987 National Convention is being hosted by New Hampshire association.

Brubaker wins national honor

GRANTVILLE — Milton Brubaker, Lititz, received the highly cherished Distinguished Service Award at the National Ayrshire Convention on Thursday.

Brubaker, whose name is synonymous with Pennsylvania Ayrshires, has been described by friends to be intensely loyal to the breed. He has spent many hours working on its behalf with the association.

This year he served on the steering and program committees in preparation for the national convention.

"This is very unexpected. I've received a lot of cooperation from all of my Ayrshire friends, and that's what makes things go," Brubaker said in accepting this award. "I look forward to many more years of working with the Ayrshire breed," he added.

Brubaker owned and developed the Spruce Villa Ayrshire herd prior to its dispersal in 1979. He currently resides on the farm with his wife, Margaret.

Milton Brubaker received the Distinguished Service Award at the National Ayrshire Convention. With Brubaker is his wife, Margaret.

Youth dominate bidding at All Breed Calf Sale

BY NANCY KUNICK
Staff Correspondent

MEADVILLE – The "All New" All Breed Calf Sale at the Crawford County Fairgrounds in Meadville, April 19th again gave dairy 4-H'ers an opportunity to acquire new project calves. Thirty-eight heifers were consigned and 30 were purchased by 4-H and FFA members from Crawford and neighboring counties.

The breed averages were as follows: Holsteins (19)- $582.89; Jerseys (6)- $497.50; Brown Swiss (3)- $475; Ayrshires (6)- $370; and Guernseys (4)- $290.

Overall sale average on the 38 animals sold was $496.

The cream of the crop was Leadfield Warden Roxanna, a December 1985 Holstein out of Hilltopper Elevation Warden and Leadfield Petro Roxy ET. Slated as a "fancy intermediate calf from four generations of excellent and very good dams from the Petro Pattern," she sold for $3,300 to 4-H'er Miles Livingston of Jamestown.

Consignor Ed Doeberiener of Queens Manor who owned the calf with Leadfield Associates, offered 4-H buyers special terms.

The next high animal was an October 1985 Ayrshire, Sycamore Meade Johnny's Mattie, who sold to Chantelle Zilhaver of Cambridge Springs for $825. She was consigned by Earl E. Keefer Sr. and Donald Shetterly of Millersburg.

She was extemely deep bodied and Ayrshire breeder Bob Dorchester announced, "I don't know where you're going to find a better bred calf than what we've got right here – right now." She was one of six Ayrshire calves sold.

The third highest selling heifer was purchased by Chantelle's sister, Monique Zilhaver. She took home a Leadfield Columbus daughter for a bid of $725.

March milk price set at $11.50

NEW YORK — Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during March 1986 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $11.50 per hundredweight (24.7 cents per quart). Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $11.84 in February 1986 and $12.64 in March 1985. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan removed $.20 per hundredweight from the dairy farmers' uniform price for March, a total of $2,105,950.71. Deductions will continue through June and will be returned in the August through November uniform price calculations.

A total of 16,376 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 1,052,975,355 pounds of milk during March 1986. This was an increase of 5.5 percent (about 55 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $124,924,704.18. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milkl dealers (handlers) used 396,568,262 pounds of milk for Class I, 37.7 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For March 1986, handlers paid $13.37 per hundredweight (28.8 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.65 a year ago.

The balance (656,407,093 pounds or 62.3 percent) was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $10.97 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For March 1986, there was a price differential of 15.8 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Plain and Fancy Egg Ranch held their 20th Anniversary Celebration Banquet last Sunday evening at the Treadway Resort Inn, Lancaster. One hundred eighty guests and employees of the ranch were entertained by Howard Helmar, known as the Omelet King, and made omelets for their dinner. Tioga dairymen file appeal in buyout program

BY BARBARA MILLER
Staff Correspondent

WESTFIELD — Edwin and Sandy Hartman, dairy farmers from Tioga County, filed an appeal charging the USDA with discrimination in the recent Dairy Termination Program.

The appeal, which the Hartmans filed April 7, was made in conjunction with a class action suit currently in progress in Kentucky, where approximately 40 farmers have brought similar charges against USDA.

The claim charges that participating in the milk diversion program, which ended March 31, 1985, adversely affected their bid in the buyout program.

Hartman explained that during their participation in the diversion program, their milk production was about 29 percent lower and that nine months of their 12-month base period used for the buyout program occured when they were in the diversion program. This, he said, forced them to bid a much higher figure for the buyout program than if they had never participated in the diversion.

"We are being discriminated against because we were forced to bid higher to achieve the same end," Hartman said. "No matter which period the government had chosen, we would have still been in the diversion program."

Hartman, who milks 80 cows and farms 500 acres, said he doesn't know how many dairymen who bid in the buyout program had participated in the diversion. However, he said, he knows other dairymen in Tioga County and in New York and Wisconsin, who are interested in the lawsuit.

Hartman said two preliminary hearings have been held in Kentucky, although lawyers think the actual proceedings will not begin until next spring. The attorneys said they had never before seen programs overlap like the buyout and diversion programs, Hartman said.

"We want people to understand that there are attorneys in Kentucky who are handling it and that there is a legal fund being put together," Hartman said.

How safe is the water?

HOW SAFE THE WATER?

Water is so common and so necessary in our everyday life. The old adage that "you never miss the water 'till—" is only too true. But there is another aspect of water than having the well run dry.

How safe is the water that we take for granted every day? The question arises because of a rash of problems encountered on farms, that seem to point that way. The problems often involve subtle health problems that defy diagnosis and spurn treatment. For example, breeding problems that have no relationship to nutrition or known diseases. This seems to be the biggest headache in high level herds, where nutrition is watched carefully and herd health is under constant monitoring.

There are many reasons to be concerned about the supply of water that our cows drink. In the first place, a dairy cow will drink about fifty gallons of the stuff every day. If that fifty gallons has only a small, say 50 or 10 parts per million of tox substance in it, the cow ends up with a substantial amount of toxic intake. It could have a profound effet on the delicately balanced metabolism of a heavily stressed high producer.

Why should we be more concerned about water now than ever before? Simply because there are more things happening now in agriculture than Papa ever thought possible. In the first place, dairy cows are becoming more and more concentrated in small areas of the land. When this happens, the manure is also more concentrated, and in some cases the land is already saturated with more nutrients than it can handle.

The only place to go, even for nature, is to dump the excess into the water table. One of the most abundant of these excess nutrients is Nitrogen, which finds it's way into water in the form of ammonia, nitrates, and/or nitrites.

Nitrogen is a mixed blessing, because it is often the most necessary and one of the most expensive plant nutrients we have to buy. If it is so abundant on our dairy farms, why do we need to buy large amounts to grow corn?

The difficulty is that it is so elusive when we go to measure it that we are forced to make assumptions about how much is there, where and when we need it. We also end up making assumptions about how much is wasted, and how much gets into the water we drink. Even our best laboratory tests for N will vary from day to day, because of this characteristic of volitility and instability.

Other things are happening to the water supply. Where do the tons of chemicals we dump on the land end up? Some pesticides as well as dairy chemicals do degrade into harmless substance, and some get locked up in the complex chemistry of clay in the soil.

But some are bound to get into the water that the cows, as well as you and I, drink every day. And if you drink a couple of glasses a day, a cow drinks a thousand times as much! More, in proportion to her size, than a human does. Any impurity or toxicicity is multiplied that much in a cow.

I don't mean to imply that all water is unsafe to drink or to give to the cows. Don't rush out to the vendor of "Water purifiers" and buy an expensive gadget. At least, not before checking carefully every aspect of the farm water supply. Have several laboratories check the water, if you suspect trouble from that source. Not because the vendor is dishonest, heaven forbid, but because the water samples differ, and mistakes can be made. It's better to get a second opinion from a disinterested source.

If herd health problems are plagueing you, and can't be attributed to disease or nutrition, suspect the water supply. If toxicicity is suspected, have at least TWO labs test it. And get a second opinion about what to do to correct it.

The easiest and cheapest correction may be to change some of your habits of purchase and disposal of chemicals so that they stay clear of the surface and subsurface water supply.

Mercer Guernsey Breeders meet

BY NANCY KUNICK
Staff Correspondent

Optimism is the picture for the Guernsey breed at the district, state and national levels according to speakers at the annual Mercer/NW meeting. The Guernsey breeders met at the New Vernon Grange on April 11 in Mercer County.

President James Dixon conducted the meeting, attended by over 100 members and guests. Harold Hill, secretary-treasurer gave a strong financial report. Again the annual Guernsey Ice Cream Social held in July was the main source of income for the association. Dixon said changes would be made in the mixing of the homemade ice cream and the date for the social may be moved up one week.

William Cannon, state director and president of the PGBA reported that the state association is in "pretty good shape" and that the sale is nearly final on the sale barn. He asked for input from members about their needs from the association. "What do we want to do in the future? Ideas are spawned at the grass roots level and we'd like to hear them," he said.

Ruth Ann John, assistant PGBA business manager, echoed this when giving a thorough account of 1985 actitivities. She explained the PGBA financial statement and reported on commissioned sales by the association and youth activities at the state level. She also spoke about the state convention held in March and thanked those from Mercer/NW who attended.

"This is the largest of the nine county meetngs I attended and it is exciting to see all those Juniors." She praised the group and said, "I encourage you to keep up the good work promoting, managing, breeding and feeding. I challenge you to do the best work possible."

National director of the AGCC Janet Harding gave a report on the board's decisions of 1985. She informed members that Jim Cavanaugh, formerly of the Jersey Cattle Club, is currently the executive secretary of the AGCC. He is working part-time and has agreed to fill this position for 18 months.

Harding also explained the possible redistricting of the AGCC that would cut the size of the board and subsequently expenses. Regardless of whether this passes, she pointed out that she would not be serving again due to her work with the ADA. "It has been extremely interesting and challenging to serve on your board," she said.

She praised the Mercer/NW GBA for being one of the most active groups of Guernsey breeders in the state and having the largest active group of Juniors in the state. "Pennsylvania has one of the most active junior associations in the nation," she added.

Harding asked that as many as possible travel to the national convention in Peoria, Illinois in June and support Elaine Hill, the Pennsylvania Guernsey Queen. "You can be proud to have both the Pennsylvania Guernsey Queen and the PGBA president from your association," she stressed.

Trophies were awarded to the grand champions from each of the five counties in the district. The recipients were: Sabrina Wagner, Crawford County; Scott Kaveney, Erie County; Danielle Sinkovich, Mercer County; Brian Rodgers, Venango County; and Jolynne Brown, Warren County. Brown was the only one unable to attend.

Production awards were presented to juniors Chad Kunz, 18,046 milk; Diane Ealy, 18,698 milk; and Sabrina Wagner, 22,012 milk.

New directors and auditors were elected. The group voted to have three auditors rather than two. Cindi Kunz was elected, Vic Marburger was re-elected and John Burnham will continue to serve as auditor. Jim Dixon declined his nomination and the position was filled by his son, David. All other directors were elected for another term.

Franklin Co. to host fruit tour

Eight landowners, totaling over 400 acres, were approved for conservation planning assistance at the April meeting of the Franklin County Conservation District Board of Directors held recently.

Those requesting assistance are: Elmer Plessinger, Peters Township; Richard Brager and J. Kirk Smith, Washington Township; James Nogle, Antrim Township; Earl Snell, Lurgan Township; Hugh W. Woods, III, Letterkenny Township; and Charles Baer and Garry W. Martin, Montgomery Township.

District Manager Ernest Tarner reported on the Executive Council Meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. that he recently attended in Williamsport.

John Akers, District Conservationist with the Chambersburg office of the USDA Soil Conservation Service gave a monthly report of his office's activities.

District Chairman Andrew Fitz and District Manager Tarner are planning to attend the Executive Council Meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. at Brookville on May 16 and 17.

Arrangements for the Annual Banquet and Meeting of the Franklin County Conservation District were discussed and the date for this year's banquet was set for September 25.

Directors Present: Andrew Fitz, Glenn Dice, Joe Ausherman, Wilbur Kline, Dwight Mickey, and Charles Myers.

Students Compete in Little International

BY MARY MAXWELL
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — Penn State's Ag Arena was the site last Saturday of the 69th Little International Livestock Show. Preparations began in February when the Block and Bridle Club, sponsor of the Little I, met with 130 students from all across the campus to draw lots. This matched participating students with Penn State animals. The Little I emphasizes quality fitting and showmanship developed during a designated time period. Beef competitors have many weeks to prepare, but sheep exhibitors have less time to get their animals ready for the show ring.

This year 75% of the exhibitors had no experience fitting and showing animals. Pre-med student Ramana Yalamanchili was one of the inexperienced. "I had never been around animals, but friends in Ag suggested I try," she said. "I had just two weeks to work with this sheep. She's a wild one!"

Other students found that even though they had been in the show ring many times before with their own animals, showing a new and inexperienced animal created difficulties. Grand Champion Showman Joan Romesburg shows her 10-year-old gelding with ease, but said of Penn State's Super Reward, "This yearling is really different. He does all kinds of strange things! But," she added, "I've learned a lot. People really help you."

This year's Little International was dedicated to one of those helpful people — Dirk Wise, assistant shepherd at the Penn State Sheep Center. "He has helped us with fitting and showmanship skills every year and keeps everyone at ease with his patience and humor," said Lu-Ann Wherry, member of the Little I publicity committee. "He's been especially good with students who have never worked with sheep before."

The Penn State Block and Bridle Club also honored Joseph Harrington, Professor of Agronomy for his help with club activities in the new Ag Arena.

Little International judges were all Penn State alumni. Dave Wise ('82), herd manager of ErReR Hill Farms, Friedens, judged the beef. Becky Pearon ('78), sheep specialist in Walpole, NH, judged sheep. Greg Bard ('80), farm manager for Pennfield Corp., Lancaster, judged swine and Paulette Stoudt ('83), trainer, Mt. Springs Resort, Shartlesville; horses.

Class champions in the 69th Little I were:

Nearly 100 persons attended the FARMER dinner at the Harrisburg Marriott last week to raise funds for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association Political Action pact. Under the title, Farmers Allied for a Responsive, More Effective Representation, the association heard former Governor George Leader say that farmers can make a difference in government if they are willing to get involved in the political process. Farmers must speak for themselves. But they must speak not just when a crises happens but on a regular basis. Leader said public officials are both your servant and your master. You must treat politicians with the same respect and friendliness as you would any other professional. Goat seminar held

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT — Although the crowd was small, interest was high at the Southeast Pennsylvania Goat Seminar held last Saturday, April 19th, at the Berks County Ag Center, Leesport. There were many questions, and many discussion as goat breeders and educational personnel addressed mastitis, external parasites, and water quality.

A renowned goat expert, Dr. Mary Smith, assistant professor, New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell University, traveled to Berks County to speak to the group.

Currently working on a book on diseases of goats to be published in 1988, Dr. Smith spent time in France researching dairy goats. She also edited a symposium on sheep and goat medicine published in 1983 by W.B. Saunders.

Most people view goats more as pets instead of a commercially profitable enterprise, according to Dr. Smith. "Most of you are doing this (raising goats) because of the love of goats instead of the love of a steady income," she began. With this in mind, Dr. Smith included management tips, practical advice, and the best remedies geared for the "backyard" goat breeder.

Throughout her lecture and slide presentation, she enhanced the discussion with actual pictures of skin disorders and humor.

The topic, Caprine Dermatologic Problems, or goat skin conditions, created much interest with the goat breeders. Skin disorders account for approximately half of the health problems in small animals according to Dr. Smith. Included in her lecture was discussions on lice and keds, earmites, several types of mange, ticks, and warbles.

"Lice can debilitate a goat by making it anemic," Dr. Smith commented. She told the breeders that any flea product that is labeled as safe to use on cats can be used on goats effectively against the lice. She suggested repeating treatment every ten days for one month. A commercial dairy operation must follow regulations for milk producers.

Regarding the problem of earmites, Smith said, "in general, they are not worth bothering about." She added that earmites are annoying to goats but cause no real problems. The treatment for earadication proves to be much more annoying to the goat and a real problem for the owner.

She then went on to list many other skin disorders and relating problems. She made a point of introducing a relatively new product currently available and praised its effectiveness against parasites.

"Ivermectin is the great miracle wormer for cows and horses," Dr. Smith began. Although it is not approved for use in lactating dairy cows, it is a very effective wormer for internal and external parasites. The same weight dosage guidelines used for cows can be used for goats.

She suggested injecting it under the skin behind the shoulders. Also available as an oral drug, Dr. Smith recommended the injectable since it keeps under the skin for weeks and only a single dose is needed.

Clyde Myers, Berks County Extension Agent, was also on hand to discuss water quality in home wells. He encouraged breeders to begin testing their water if they are having problems such as stomach disorders or diarrhea in their goat herds or in their family.

Honey support price to drop

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng today announced that honey producers will receive an average price support loan rate of 64 cents per pound on their 1986 production, as required by the Food Security Act of 1985. The new rate is 1.3 cents below the 1985 level.

Extracted honey loan rates will range from 67.1 cents to 52.2 cents per pound, depending on color and class, Lyng said.

The rates, which apply to extracted honey in 60-pound or larger containers, are: White or lighter, 67.1 cents; Extra light amber, 63.1 cents; Light amber, 58.2 cents; Other table and non-table honey, 52.2 cents.

Loans will be offered on 1986-crop honey in eligible containers on or off farms. Producers have until Jan. 31, 1987, to request loans that will mature April 30, 1987.

Producers with honey price support loans will be permitted to buy back their loans at the price support rate or a lesser price as determined by the secretary of agriculture.

Dairy expo at Penn State today

UNIVERSITY PARK — To sports fans, Sat. April 26 is the day to preview next year's winning Nittany Lions. But to students and supporters of agriculture, it's Show Day for the 61st Dairy Expo at the Ag Arena.

The all day fitting and showing contests, sponsored by the Dairy Science Club, give Penn State students practical experience with university dairy cattle. The Expo is free and open to the public and a great way to spend the morning before the football game.

This year the Dairy Expo will be dedicated to Paul Shellenberger, professor of animal science and coordinator and adviser for the dairy production program at Penn State.

"Dr. Shellenberger always finds time to give advice when we need it and has been very supportive of our programs," says Beth Heald, chairman of the Expo publicity committee. The Dairy Science Club, which sponsors the yearly competition, chose Shellenberger by vote.

The Dairy Expo is not new to Shellenberger. In 1956 when he was an undergraduate in dairy science at Penn State, he won the honor of being Reserve Champion Jersey Fitter and at the 1957 Expo he was selected as the most helpful individual to the competition — a committment he has continued.

In addition to his teaching, advising and administration in dairy production, Shellenberger is an adviser to students in the animal bioscience program and chairman of the faculty program committee in animal bioscience.

Dairy production is an undergraduate major in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science. Animal bioscience is an interdisciplinary program administered by the departments of Dairy and Animal Science, Poultry Science, and Veterinary Science.

Shellenberger has been a member of the Faculty Senate for 12 years and is a member of the University Committee for Writing Across the Curriculum. He won the AMOCO Foundation Outstanding Teaching Award last year and the Christian R. and Mary F. Lindback Award in 1975. Both all-University awards recognize excellence in undergraduate teaching.

The 61st Dairy Expo is the culmination of months of preparation. Penn State students will compete for awards in fitting and showing in all major dairy breeds. It is sponsored, organized and run by students in Penn State's Dairy Science Club.

The Expo will be held at the Ag Arena on Park Avenue Extension across from Beaver Stadium. Competition begins at 8:00 a.m. and the public is invited. Special events such as the annual milking and calf dressing contests, will be held at noon. Refreshments will be available and parking in adjacent lots is free.

Agriculture Day (March 20, 1986) is an annual recognition of the economic activity that provides the U.S. with the most plentiful and dependable supply of nutritious food, in the greatest variety, for the lowest average share of people's incomes, of anywhere in the world.

2.3 million farmers provide food and fiber for 271 million people — 201 million in the U.S. and 70 million overseas.

HAY! Where's the leaf?

If your livestock could talk, they might be asking that question. You could be needlessly losing up to half of the ALFALFA and CLOVER leaves because of leaf shatter. Some rotary head tedders can beat much of the protein-rich leaves off the stems - leaving them in the field. (That can cost you money in lost nutritional value because 80% of the protein is in the leaves.)

GRIMM "Leaf-saver" TEDDERS

SUPER "C"

The most gentle-handling tedder made. Your answer to preventing leaf-loss and making more palatable, nutrient-rich hay while cutting drying time up to 50%. 8 ft. wide. Pto-driven thru gear box and V-belt that protects against shock or damage from stones or other obstructions. New simplified design and rugged construction cuts maintenance, lengthens life. "Made in Vermont" assures reliable, fast machine and parts availability. Priced very competitively.

Matt daughter tops sale

CHAMBERSBURG — Meadow-Vu Astro Bess, a summer yearling sired by Higherview Astro Matt, topped the Franklin County Calf Sale, held recently at the Ralph Horst Sales Barn. Consigned by Robert and Rhodena Eckstein, Mercersburg, this fancy yearling's maternal side boasted three consecutive generations of 4.4 percent fat test dams, who were also show winners in their own right. She commanded an even $1,000.00 from final bidder Jamie Hartman, St. Thomas, an eleven-year-old who plans to make "Bess" his 4-H project this year.

Second high selling calf sold for $970.00 to Kevin Swope, McConellsburg. This senior calf, Rowe-Spring Tony Tug Sue, was consigned by Raymond Helman, Chambersburg. She was sired by Marshfield Elevation Tony and is out of a C Lloyds Nugget dam.

Top selling colored breed calf of the sale was a Jersey senior calf consigned by Beth Reinhart, Lemasters. James Heeter, Shade Gap, paid $460.00 to own this Advancer Sleeping Milestone daughter who's full sister went undefeated last year in the local shows.

The sale averaged $582.00 on 15 calves. The sale committee included: Alvin Meyers, Dennis Crider, Robert Eckstein, George Cashell and Lester Martin. Auctioneer Ralph Horst donated his time and his facilities. James Burdett read the pedigrees.

Middlebury receiving milk

SYRACUSE, NY — The Middlebury Center, Pa., milk manufacturing plant, leased by Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc. to Dietrich's Milk Products, Inc., Reading, Pa., received milk on April 3 and started production on April 4, 1986. Plant operations and improvements are right on schedule according to Thomas Dietrich, vice president of Dietrich's.

The butter and whole milk powder manufacturing plant, although not running at full capacity yet, is receiving an average of 250,000 pounds of milk a day and is operating five days a week. Thomas Decker, plant manager, stated that two shifts of 35 area people are currently employed at the plant.

United Dairy Cooperative Services, a division of Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc., agent for supplying milk to Dietrich's, recently held two meetings in the Middlebury area to meet with interested milk producers, offering them opportunities for producer premiums and more favorable hauling rates.

Dairylea sells New York plant

SYRACUSE – Dairylea Cooperative Inc., a majar marketer of milk and dairy products in hte Northeast, announced that an arrangement has been completed to sell its fluid milk processing and distribution business in Metropolitan New York City to Tuscan Dairy Farms, Inc. of Union, New Jersey. Dairylea will supply milk and manufactured dairy products to the operation.

According to terms of the agreement, Tuscan will begin operation of Dairylea's Woodside, Queens plant, the Lindenhurst, Long Island depot and the associated distribution business on or about May 1. All of Dairylea's approximately 250 metropolitan employees will become employees of Tuscan.

Service to customers will continue uninterrupted. The Dairylea brand will continue to be offered under a special licensing agreement with Tuscan. Dairylea is dedicated to assist with a smooth transition.

"It is a good move for both of us," commented Dairylea Cheif Executive Officer, Bob Hall. "Tuscan's marketing and distribution expertise, backed with a Dairylea quality milk supply and cultured products, affords consumers a broad range of high quality dairy products."

Ventures and working relationships are not new to Dairylea. The Cooperative already has ventures in place with Upstate Milk Cooperatives, Inc. in Western New York, Atlantic Processing, Inc. in Allentown, Pennsylvania, and owns about one-third of O-AT-KA Milk Products, a manufacturer of dairy products in Batavia, New York. There is a milk assembly and marketing agreement in place with Agri-Mark, the largest dairy cooperative in New England. "The idea," according to Hall, "is to market farmers' milk to its maximum advantage and provide the best possible products and services to consumers."

Dairylea, a cooperative business owned by 3,000 dairy farmers will continue the direct processing and distribution of a complete line of fluid milk and dairy products in Upstate New York. Dairylea plants at Syracuse, Vernon and Oneida, New York produce fluid milk, cream, LactAid and cultured dairy products. With 1985 sales of $360 million, it is the nation's 96th largest food marketer.

Globe-Run Sale averages $1,077

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent

PETERSBURG — The top selling animal at the Globe-Run Farms dairy herd dispersal sale April 19 in Petersburg was Globe-Run Handsome Ada.

A six-year-old daughter of Globe-Run Elevation, Ada sold for $5,000 to Scott and Mark Fisher with John Foster Jr. retaining an interest in her.

A total of 160 head were sold for an average of $1,077.

Ada was named reserve grand champion at the 1985 Pennsylvania Farm Show and has been an outstanding member of the Globe-Run show string for a number of years.

Ada is scored Excellent 91 and her top record is 19,346 pounds milk and 744 pounds fat with a 3.8 test.

Gerald and Patricia Carr of Somerset also bought an outstanding member of the show string — Globe-Run Elevation Tammy, who brought $3,100. Tammy won All-Pennsylvania four-year-old in 1981 and now the nine-year-old daughter of Elevation is classified Excellent 91.

Tammy is due April 28 to Carlin-M Ivanhow Bell and has a top record of 18,082 milk and 786 fat.

Globe-Run Valiant Loyal sold to Phil and Steve Pheasant of Martinsburg for $3,100. This three-year-old daughter of SWD Valiant is scored 82 and is due June 25 to Leadfield Columbus-ET.

In 279 days she produced 16,621 pounds milk and 560 pounds of fat with a 4.4 test.

Globe-Run Lar-Y-Mat Dell, a four-year-old daughter of Lar-Y-Don Fond Elevation, sold for $3,000 to David Rama. She is scored 88 and is bred to Quality Ultimate.

David Rama also purchased the fifth high animal, Globe-Run Valiant Coke, for $2,800. She is a three-year-old daughter of SWD Valiant and is scored 83. She is due June 10 to Leadfield Columbus-ET.

Animals sold during the dispersal went to Maryland, New York, and New Jersey, and a few went as far as Washington.

John Foster Jr. plans to continue farming; he retained over 20 heifers from the original herd and bought a few at the sale.

Palmer has been an active member of the Dairy Science and Block and Bridle clubs. He is president of the student advisory committee for the Circleville Farm and is a member of the farm livestock working group. He received a student activities award at Penn State's Berks Campus.

The two-year program in Agricultural Business prepares students for employment in commercial agriculture and middle management positions in businesses serving agriculture. It is offered by the College of Agriculture only at the University Park campus.

After graduation in May, Palmer will continue his studies at Penn State in agricultural science. He hopes to own his own beef farm.

GSI YOUR SOURCE FOR GRAIN EQUIPMENT

Including Air Drying, Stirway Systems, Aeration Systems

NOW Introducing:

The New GSI Top Dry System

The Top Dry Difference

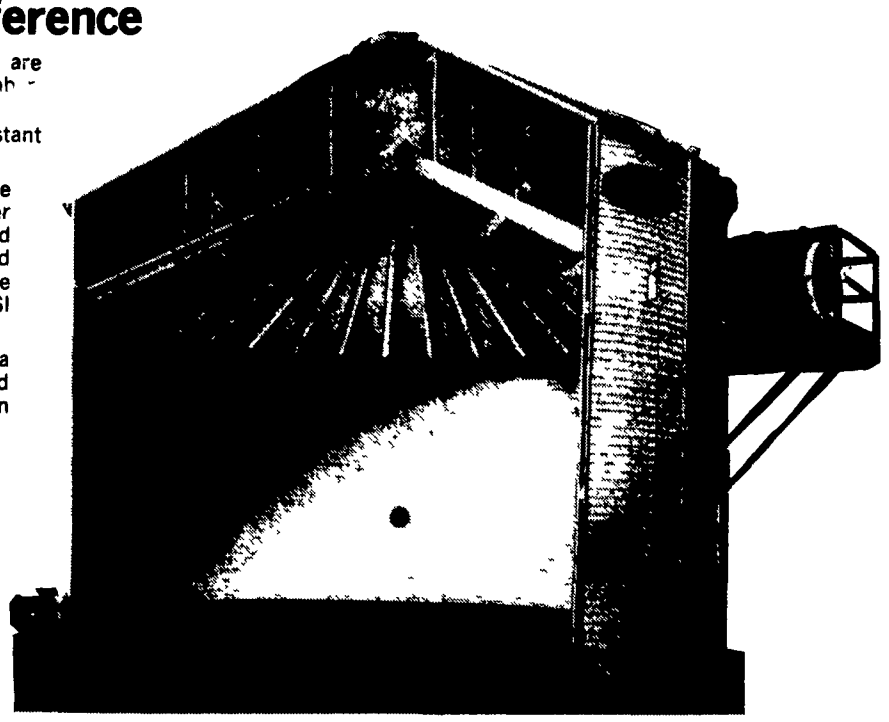
1. A precise number of circular bands are mounted at key locations in the drying chamb - These bands work in conjunction with gra the angle of repose of grain to achieve a constant layer of grain depth.

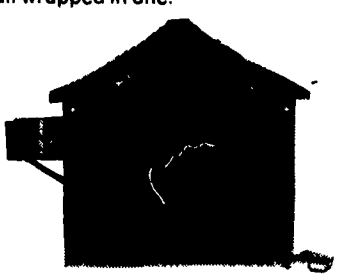
2. Perforated hoppers and dump chutes are strategically spaced in the drying chamber floor. This guarantees that when hot dried grain is dumped, it will be evenly dispersed over the cooling floor below Troublesome grain spreaders are not needed with a GSI Top-Dry

3. Optional deluxe rotary switch indicates a full drying chamber of wet grain. When wired to a horn or light, operator on the outside can be signaled to stop the intake of wet grain.

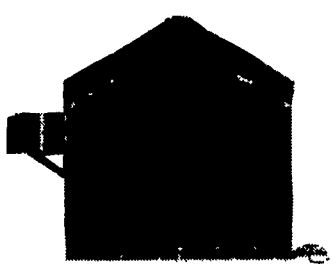
4. The Top Dry system uses specially designed airstream heaters that have a HI-LO burner standard. These heaters will produce relatively low constant temperatures of 110°-180°F without cycling heater on and off. These lower temperatures combined with a shallow grain depth and higher airflow (cfm) fans, make GSI Top Dry capacities higher than that of other systems.

5. Its a drying bin, cooling bin, and storage bin all wrapped in one.

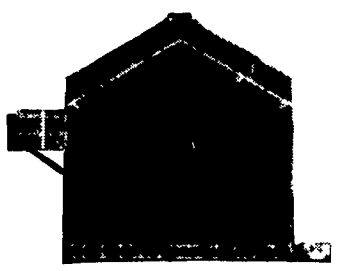




1. A fan and heater located in the upper sidewall forces hot air through a level column of wet grain above.



2 When the column of grain above has dried to a predetermined moisture level, mechanical dump chutes are opened letting the hot dried grain fall to a cooling and storage area below.



3. Outside air from the cooling fan captures heat from the hot dried grain, and rises through the new layer of wet grain above. This process of recapturing heat and using it again cuts drying cost drastically.

Dairy Promotion Board lists upcoming promotions

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — It's going to be a season of "Summer Love" once the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's new media campaign gets underway.

"Summer Love" refers not to the boy-girl variety but to the love of that old-fashioned favorite — ice cream. With the help of eye-catching billboards, radio spots, and a series of special events, the Advisory Board hopes to keep that favorite food in everyone's mind throughout the summer.

Meeting Thursday, the Advisory Board got a first-hand look at new agency-produced promotional material and outlined plans for continuing programs.

June Dairy Month will be kicked off in Market Square in Pittsburgh June 3 with a radio station KDKA special live broadcast featuring their "rainbow machine." A wide range of activities will be planned to draw attention to dairy products that day.

Another special event will be "Summer Love Sundae Tuesday," which will be held on June 24 in Harrisburg.

Cindy Weimer announced that orders have been placed for materials ranging from painter's hats to T-shirts to aprons, many featuring the "Summer Love" logo. The Board will also have available cow-shaped cutting boards and glass milk pitchers. Most of these promotional items will be available from local promotion committees after June 1.

It was announced that a joint venture with McDonald's food chain featuring side panels on milk cartons and newspaper ads was highly successful, resulting in a 23 percent increase in transactions for the participating restaurants. Local dairies in the Johnstown, Somerset, St. Mary's, Dubois, Philipsburg and State College areas participated.

In discussing new ideas the Advisory Board decided to investigate the possiblity of offering a monetary award to the best new product developed. More information will be sought about the advisability of offering such an award.

A dairy recipe contest will be held in the summer with winners to be announced in September. Local dairy promotion groups have brochures describing the contest. There will be newspaper ads, public service announcements and dairy carton side panels carrying this information beginning June 9.

Fruit blossoms survive

Lancaster County Extension agent Jay Irwin reported. Although frost was expected Wednesday night, temperatures didn't fall to the freezing point.

Adams County reported no snowfall, but growers there were prepared for low temperatures and frost. "We were greatly concerned," Adams County Extension agent Tom Piper said. However, temperatures hovered in the mid-30's and the fruit crop, which was in full blossom, was spared.

"The fruit crop survived just great as far as we can tell," Piper said.

Other parts of the state saw much more snow than the light dusting Lancaster County received. More than a foot of snow fell in the Poconos and Greentown, on the border of Wayne and Pike Counties, received 18 inches.

But fruit trees in that area were not yet in bloom and suffered no damage, Wayne County Extension director John Creighton said.

New branding rules

permitted to have a two inch brand on the right jaw.

The regulations recommend using an electrically controlled thermostat branding iron. This must be applied so as to cause permanent hair loss. It is suggested a veterinarian or someone familiar with the branding proceedure be called in to do the branding.

Vets should also be consulted on methods to desenitize the area, the regulations recommend.

When freeze branding, the hair at the site must be clipped and the surface cleaned with alcohol before the application of the iron.

Application can be made using liquid nitrogen or dry ice. To cool this iron to room temperature, insertation in alcohol until the bubbling action stops is recommended.

One to two minutes of steady application is suggested to insure permanent hair loss. When done properly, the brand will turn the color of saddle leather.

It is only necessary to burn the outer layer of the skin and no deeper when branding.

The requirement of a permanent mark on all animals coming into a buyout herd has remained. The government is now giving participants the choice of hot or cold branding.

PA farmers advise legislators floriculture (the growing of trees and shrubs). PFA members want the omitted segment of agriculture to be included as was originally intended.

With the continued vulnerability of the poultry and livestock diseases, PFA policy calls for the commitment of increased public funding of animal health research diagnostic and indemnity programs. In addition, they want an animal health commission to be formed. This commission would be given the responsibility to manage funds and carry out the programs outside of the "winds" of political change.

PFA supports the mandatory use of seat belts in passenger vehicles to improve highway traffic safety and wants a mandatory returnable beverage container law to reduce littering along rural highways.

Ag land preservation is strongly supported by PFA, and the farmers want stronger guarantees that payment to poultry and egg farmers will be made by merchants who buy their products. They want to keep the regulation of pesticide applicators in the ag department.

The ag commodity marketing act of 1968 is under special discussion. Under this act the producers of ag commodities may, through referendums, assess themselves to provide funds for research and promotion of their products. The program worked well for 17 years with apple and dairy products as excellent examples of success.

However, recently legal council rulings would make all these financial transactions subject to approval by the governor and treat all funds collected as public funds. PFA farmers contend that these funds are private funds collected not as public tax but as private promotional funds. The farmers want the 1968 act amended to return to the commodity board some of the autonomy that the administrative ruling would take away.

In light of a significant growing problem of the spread of rabies, PFA supports the concept that all dogs in Pennsylvania be vaccinated against the disease and that proof of current vaccination be required for licensing.

After the meeting with senators and representatives in the capital Tuesday afternoon, the farmers hosted the legislatures at a banquet at the Penn Harris Inn. President Eckel was the featured speaker. PFA is a voluntary general farm organization, which provides a voice in governmental activities, marketing programs information and other farm services for more than 23,000 farm families throughout the state of Pennsylvania.

PFA President Keith Eckel speaks at Legislative Banquet.

John Moore spreads cheer with soft, cuddly teddy bears

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

STRASBURG — Teddy Bears are symbols of security, warmth and innocence, and their appeal is not limited to children. Moore Bears is an enterprise devoted to giving people of all ages all the security, love and comfort they want through stuffed bears.

Operated by Phyllis and John Moore, Moore Bears has been open only since November, but already has built a reputation for quality bears and for a caring, sunny attitude.

Hundreds of bears line the shelves and tables at the shop located at Hershey Farm Restaurant near Strasburg. In fact, visitors may be greeted by two friendly bears sitting on the front porch, and sometimes by John himself with bear in hand.

John points out, "This is a 'hands-on' shop." Touching of the merchandise is not only allowed but is encouraged; indeed, it would take tremendous self-control not to hug or squeeze the delightful bears. It also takes tremendous self-control not to take one home to love. The Moores have observed that even grumpy people become friendly once they are in the store.

But Moore Bears is not just a shop to purchase bears — the Moores will arrange for delivery of bears to shut-ins, to birthday parties, to showers, to secretaries, to bosses and for any occasion where a gift may be appropriate. Not only does the recipient receive a stuffed, cuddly, loveable bear, but the bear is delivered by "Ted Bear," a walking, talking, 6-foot-tall bear who loves to give and get hugs.

Ted Bear is really John, but both Moores agree that once John is in the fuzzy outfit, he makes a transformation into an outgoing, funny, likeable bear who elicits reactions from people that would never come to a mere human.

In his transformation, Ted Bear will sometimes break into song, with such appropriate titles as "Let me call you Bearheart." Phyllis says with a smile, "You never know what he's going to do. I'm always a little uneasy. He is very spontaneous." Phyllis accompanies Ted Bear everywhere because he sometimes has difficulty seeing and knowing what's going on around him.

What's usually going on is the spread of happiness. If he goes to a hospital to deliver a bear, nurses, patients and others suddenly turn on cheerful smiles. Indeed, the white costume which John often wears has had its "white nose kissed in," from so much affection.

Phyllis says the first reaction of people to Ted Bear is to hug him, because of his warm and cuddly appearance. John agrees, "They always want to touch him." Only one segment of the population doesn't have that reaction, John points out, "From age two and under they are afraid of Ted Bear."

John Moore holds a sample of one of the many bears that keep bringing customers back to the shop he operates with wife Phyllis at Hershey Farm Restaurant near Strasburg.

"Ted Bear" delivers a bear to Dean Hershey, Manheim, after Dean was injured in a farm accident. The white, cuddly bear always attracts a lot of attention in the hospitals and invariably brings smiles to the faces of patients and staff alike.

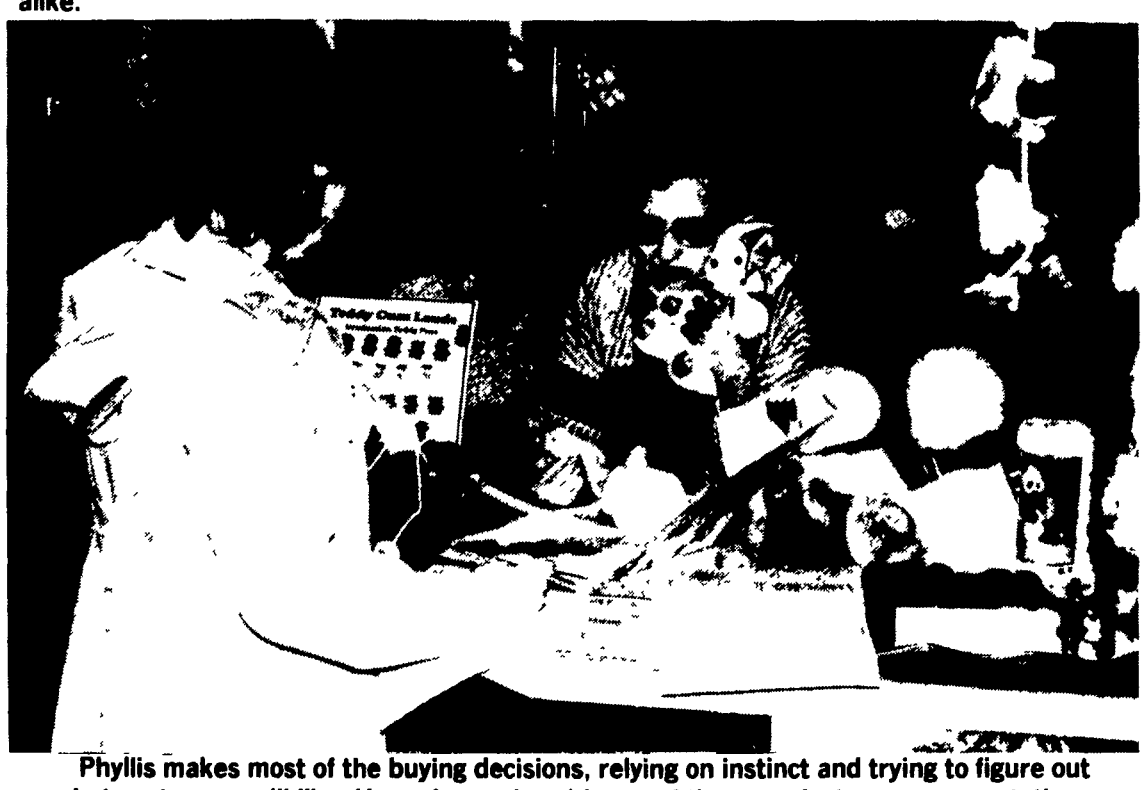
As John notes, there are many good reasons to send bears as gifts: flowers die, balloons break, but bears are forever. John has requests to deliver bears to people of all ages, including men. He says it's a misconception that grown men don't like teddy bears.

In fact, he has found that more older people have bears than you might imagine. Once when he delivered a bear to a very ill elderly lady in the hospital, he was called by the family to let him know that it was the first time she had smiled in months. It is experiences like these that make John teary eyed, as he says, "This is a real ministry."

John says, "They are a comfort for people to get through trying times. They can be very therapeutic to someone who's alone, or to an older person. Bears are fun." Phyllis adds that in the uncertainty of the times in which we live, "Bears stand for security."

John's background in buying teddy bears dates to when his four children were small and he became the "official teddy bear buyer" for the family. Phyllis recalls that he would go into stores and "hold and touch teddy bears and say, this is not acceptable." It was the feel of any bear that eventually sold it for John. Even with the six grandchildren, Phyllis remarks, "Nobody bought teddy bears but Grandpa."

Now most of the decisions about which bears to carry in the shop are made by Phyllis, who says, "I go on instinct, and what I think the public will like." She orders bears from 12 different companies and 10 individual crafts people. "I like them to feel good and I stay away from anything gaudy."



Phyllis makes most of the buying decisions, relying on instinct and trying to figure out what customers will like. Here she works with one of the manufacturer representatives making decisions for the holiday season.

Homestead Notes

Bears in the shop range from limited edition collector items to well-known manufacturers to other "bearaphernalia." They are in all sizes, from very large to very small. Moore Bears feature specialty dressing for their bears. Some are dressed like famous athletes, some like brides and grooms, and some in nursery rhyme dress, like "Little Bear Peep." Phyllis says they will work with customers in designing an outfit if desired, but acknowledged that most people find something they want right in the shop.

The shop at Hershey Farm was an outgrowth of owners Ed and Erma Hershey asking Phyllis if she was interested in opening a quilting shop there. An avid quilter, Phyllis didn't think that was the right thing for her. "I was so busy and the things I do are expensive; they are not ordinary quilts."

However, John had suffered a heart attack last spring and had to slow down in his work at Show-Ease Stall Co., where he was sales and service manager for John Kreider. As they discussed the possibility of a bear shop with friends and family, Phyllis says they received a lot of positive feedback. Their children said, "Daddy's perfect."

Phyllis recalls, "We weren't too sure, but it was as if God had opened a door and literally pushed us through. We were here before we knew it." John agrees, "We plunged, and we enjoy it tremendously." They also credit the Hersheys for being "supportive and helpful."

One daughter helps in making the specialty clothing for the bears, and another helped run the shop until she was able to join her husband in the service. Phyllis recalls that when John had his heart attack, the children showed up at the hospital with teddy bears.

As the shop has become known and business increased, John is working less at Show Ease and more in the store. Because of limitations on lifting because of the heart attack, this work is less stressful for him.

Phyllis continues her custom quilting by setting up her frame right in the shop. She says, "I'm so lost in teddys, I've had to give up some of my quilting work." Visitors to the shop enjoy watching her quilt and seeing progress on her projects.

Most advertising has been from word of mouth, and often customers are repeat. Despite their location in the heart of tourist country, Phyllis says they really want to build up local clientele. "Local people keep coming back, and that makes us very happy."

They have even had the experience of some out-of-state people returning to the shop. Because the inventory changes from week to week, there are always new bears to become acquainted with.

John, not surprisingly, has become a member of the Good Bears of the World, and is hoping to participate in their two-day event at the Philadelphia Zoo. The Red Rose Den meets once a month, and usually each member takes a bear and tells a bear story.

What the future holds for Moore Bears remains a question mark, because the Moores feel they are just in the process of taking off. They have not yet experienced a tourist season, and went through one holiday season with very little exposure in the community. They are enjoying each day in this business and say they will expand as necessary.

There are such things as possible franchises of the name and idea, and they would like to offer special events such as an appraisal day when customers could bring in old bears and have their true value established.

As Phyllis says, "We never knew there were so many crazy people who like bears and so many who collect bears." For the Moores and for their customers, the shop represents a fun enterprise which brings a lot of joy and happiness to the community.

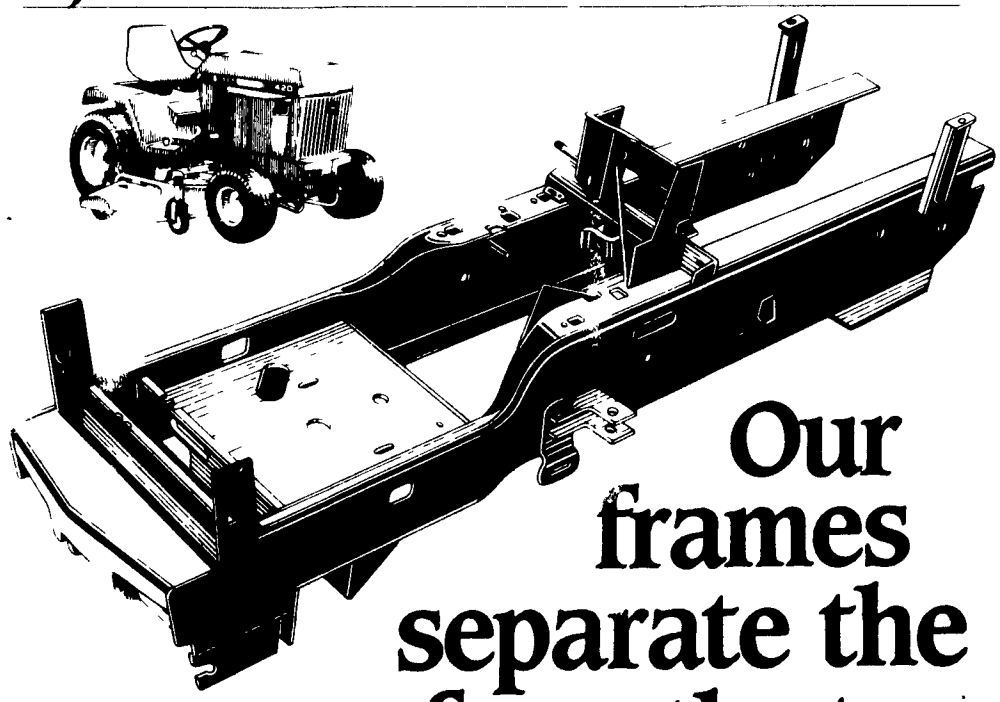
John Deere 300/400 Series Tractors



Our frames separate the tractors from the toys

Just about anybody can make a tractor that cuts grass And nearly everyone does, it seems.

But the mark of a real tractor is not only how well it mows. But how it handles heavy-duty endeavors. And many brands don't.

John Deere 300 and 400 Series are legitimate lawn and garden tractors that can load, till, blade and remove snow. Thanks to full-length welded steel frames. And C-channel siderails that won't twist under stress

John Deere frames are tough No bolts or rivets to jiggle loose No lightweight metal to give out halfway through a garden plot or a pile of gravel.

In fact, the 420 Tractor frame tips the scale at a not-to-be-taken-lightly 139 pounds. A full 15 percent of the tractor's total weight And a true indication of the quality John Deere builds in.

Before you buy that first or next tractor, ask the other guys about their frames Then see us about what separates the real tractors from the toys

Eat a Variety of Food

If a vote were taken among nutrition educators, the most common nutrition mesage would probably be eat a variety of food. However the word variety has many different meanings among consumers and professionals.

For some people, variety simply means a little bit of everything. For others, it implies eating foods from each of the food groups. Yet, for others, the phrase means choosing a wider variety of food within each of the food groups. Many people consider variety to also include differences in food preparation and in the timing and size of meals.

It is important to clarify just what nutrition educators mean by variety. Studies indicate that it is sufficient to recommend that people choose different foods from among the five major food groups. Nutrition will improve for most people following this advice.

While eating a wider variety of foods from within each group also improves nutrition, research indicates that it is not more healthful to eat or drink five different kinds of milk and milk products than it is to consume just one kind. The same applies to each of the other food groups — grains, dairy products, fruits and vegetables, meat and meat alternates, and fats, sweets and alcohol.

Researchers at the Penn State University also found that increased variety in the diet benefits some people more than others. Of course, people with little variety in their diets to begin with will benefit most. But a varied diet appears to benefit women more than men, and adolescents and young to middle-aged adults seem to benefit more than other age groups.

Eating a variety of food, in other words making sure you eat something from each of the food groups each day, can really make a contribution to good nutrition. If you fit into one of the high benefit categories — teens, young adults, women, or anyone with a limited diet — you can benefit most from paying attention to the tried and true message: Eat a variety of foods.

MILK: A low-fat beverage

Many people think that milk is high in fat. However, it is actually a lowfat beverage.

Whole or regular milk is more than 96 percent fat-free. An eight-ounce glass of whole milk has 150 calories and about 30 milligrams of cholesterol.

Most lowfat milk contains 2 percent milkfat, but you can find 1.5 and 1 percent milkfat products in some markets. Two percent milkfat provides 120 calories per eight-ounce glass if it is not fortified with milk solids. 1.5 and 1 percent milkfat milk provide only slightly fewer calories.

An eight-ounce glass of milk contains 90 calories and about five milligrams of cholesterol.

Include milk in your diet to get the calcium your body needs and to prevent osteoporosis in later years. It makes little difference in what form you include milk. You can get the equivalent of the recommended two glasses a day by eating cottage cheese, yogurt or other dairy products.

Yellow Rose 4-H Club

The Yellow Rose 4-H club is sponsoring its first annual Open Horse Show, May 11 at the Luzerne County Fairgrounds.

The show will have 40 classes which will include Western Pleasures and Equitations, Hunter Horses and Ponies. 4-H Pleasures and Equitations, Gynkanna and Pee Wee classes will be offered. A trophy and six ribbons are awarded in each class.

Refreshments will be served on the grounds with many homemade baked items offered. Admission is free to the public.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

When I got up this morning, I saw several large limbs had fallen from a persimmon tree into our yard. We had a rainy and stormy night and now I'll have some extra work to drag the limbs away.

Then I got to thinking about what else I wanted to accomplish today and I realized that my happiest days are usually the busiest ones.

Recently I saw a very different cake recipe and I wanted to try it for dinner. Also, I really should make a trip to the grocery store. Then there is the braided rug waiting to be laced.

By chance, I finally found the package of Sweet Pea seed that I'd been hunting for days. It had gotten lost in the shuffle of having house guests over Eastertime. However, I fear the ground is too wet to plant anything today. But don't worry, there are lots of other things to do — like write this article.

Yesterday was spent at our church sewing for the Needlework Guild. This group of women make "new" garments which are distributed annually to needy people. Some women cut out patterns for dresses, skirts and blouses; others use the sewing machine. I am the one who puts the finishing touches on the garments such as buttons, hooks and eyes, and the hemming of dresses. There is a job for all kinds of skills.

Our church has quite recently started a social group for the "over 40's," and they tell us that we don't need to show a birth certificate. The first meeting was a covered dish meal and a musical program. Next months' will be a "silent auction" and I'll have to find something to take — maybe in the attic.

New FFA jackets and 25-case club ribbons were awarded to Steve Foye, Brian Young and Brad Henise for new member selling 25 or more cases of citrus.

Fifty-case club ribbons were awarded to Mike Blessing, Tammy Buser, Dean Graham, Troy Yohe and Wayne Cobb for selling 50 or more cases of citrus.

Ten students were recognized and received ribbons for their project record books which competed in the York County Project Record Book Contest.

Eat right with light salads

The tulips are blooming and between frequent showers the warm sunshine and gentle breezes remind us that spring is here and summer can't be far behind.

That means lighter eating for many — especially those who plan to lose a few pounds before swim suit season arrives. One way to lose those extra pounds, in addition to stepping up your exercise routine, is to include salads in your meal plan.

Below are a number of delicious ways incorporate salads into your diet plan. And while you're deciding which salad recipe you'd like to try first, don't forget to take a look at the recipe topics for the next several weeks. I still need your brownie and cookie recipes, side dish and crock pot recipes.

I'm especially excited about the upcoming crock pot feature, since spring and summer are always such busy, hectic times. Please take a few minutes out of your own full schedule to share your favorite, time-saving crock pot recipes with us.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from the Susquehanna Unit of the Herb Society of America. The Herb Society will be holding its sixth annual Herb Sale at Rock Ford Plantation in Lancaster on May 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

In addition to offering herbs, books, gardening items and potpourri for sale, the society will have an educational display of herb jellies and recipes for visitors to enjoy.

Below is just one of many jelly recipes that incorporate herbs. This particular recipe comes from society member Genevieve Libhart of Marietta. In developing recipes, members just experiment, member Bonnie Miller explained. Sometimes they're great the first try, while other times "they need a little more work." For more about the Herb Society, turn to the story featuring them in this week's B section.

Lavender Jelly

For the infusion: bring to rolling boil 2¼ cups water; remove from heat and pour over 2 cups lavender flower heads. Allow to steep for 20 minutes. Strain.

Bring to full rolling boil over high heat:
1¾ cups lavender infusion
3½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

At once, stir in 1 pouch liquid frut pectin. Return to full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute. (This is a boil that cannot be stirred down.) Remove from heat and skim off foam. Immediately pour into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately by pouring 1/8 inch hot paraffin onto jelly surface. Makes 3½ cups.

ANSWER - Anne Nolt, Bowmansville, asked for a recipe for homecanned fruit pie fillings. Thanks go to Barbara Peachey, McAlisterville, for the recipe below.

Fruit Pie Filling

¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup clearjel
½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup water
3 cups fruit

Heat and stir sugar, water, salt and lemon juice to boiling point. Remove from heat. Make a paste of clearjel and the ½ cup water. Stir paste into heated mixture and bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Mixture will be very thick. Add the corn syrup and scant 3 cups fresh fruit. When using raisins or other dried fruit, cook to almost soft before measuring. When using other cherries, add ¼ teaspoon red food color; when using apples, add a dash of cinnamon if desired. Makes 1 quart filling.

Put in jars, seal with jar lids and process 20 minutes in boiling water bath method. NOTE: after this filling is canned for several months, it may appear watery and whiteish. This means the liquid is dividing from the starch and is nothing to worry about. When opening a jar, stir a little and after baked in pie or heated, it will turn out clear and fresh.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Serve Quiche for a Spring Brunch

A quiche is an egg pie, with cheese, meat, and or vegetables cooked in it. It is delicious for a company breakfast, brunch, or in fact, any time of day!

If your family balks at new things and doesn't want to eat a "quiche", just call it an egg pie! This minor deception worked well in our house, and later I told my boys what a funny name the French have for egg pie — quiche! Quiche is a favorite now!

The only problem with making a quiche, is that it takes almost an hour to bake in a range oven. Using your microwave to help bake it will solve this problem!

A quiche baked entirely in the microwave takes about 20 minutes to cook. But since it doesn't brown at all, it doesn't "look so hot" by most people's standards.

To get a lovely browned quiche, in about half the usual time, combine your microwave with your range oven. Start baking the quiche in your microwave, then transfer it to a hot range oven to cook the crust and brown the pie.

In 20 to 25 minutes your quiche is ready to serve, and looks just great! Try one of these two recipes for a great meal.

This hearty Ham and Potato Quiche will please any "real men" in your life!

Ham and Potato Quiche

10-inch unbaked pie crust
1 12-ounce can evaporated milk or 1 ½ cups half and half or light cream
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
3 eggs
2 cups shredded potatoes (2 large or about 1 pound)
1 green onion, sliced
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese (4 ounces, or 6 to 8 slices)
1 cup diced cooked ham (about 6 ounces)

1. Fit pie crust to a 10-inch pie plate, a deep dish plate or a quiche pan.

2. Beat milk and flour together until smooth, then beat in eggs. Stir in remaining ingredients and pour into pie crust. Filling will puff a little in the oven, so don't fill the crust to the brim. Cook any extra in a custard cup. (Preheat oven to 425°F.)

3. Leave uncovered and microwave on high for 7 to 8 minutes, until the filling is set about 1-inch in from the edges.

4. Transfer to preheated range oven and bake for 15 to 20 minutes, until browned and set near the center. Let stand about 5 minutes before cutting for easier serving.

Tips:

— Substitute a 12-ounce package of frozen hash brown potatoes for the fresh. Microwave frozen potatoes in package on high for 5 to 6 minutes to defrost before mixing with eggs.

— If you have a food processor, make the pie crust first. Then coarsely chop the cheese and the ham, and shred the potatoes last. You won't have to wash the bowl until you're done and the potatoes won't darken.

— If you want to bake the quiche entirely in the microwave, prebake the pie crust before filling. Then prepare as directed, and microwave as shown in the Mushroom Quiche below.

If you like the flavor of mushrooms and sour cream, this quiche will be a favorite!

Mushroom Quiche

9-inch prebaked pie crust
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped onion
12 ounces mushrooms, sliced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
¾ cup sour cream
¼ cup milk
¼ cup shredded Swiss cheese (1 ounce)

1. Combine butter and onion in a mixing bowl and microwave on high for 2 minutes until the onion is partially tender.

2. Stir in mushrooms, lemon juice and salt. Microwave on high for 15 minutes stirring every 5 minutes, until the juice cooks out of the mushrooms and evaporates.

3. Beat remaining ingredients together until well blended. Stir in mushrooms and pour into baked pie shell. Leave uncovered and microwave on medium (50,5) for 18 to 20 minutes, until the center is almost set. Rotate pie every 5 minutes if your oven cooks unevenly. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving.

Tips:

— Use an unbaked pie shell if you want to bake the quiche in the microwave and then the range. Use the timing above for the Ham and Potato Quiche as a guideline for baking times.

If you have a micro/convection oven, use this to bake your quiche. I can't give you the exact baking times, since each brand of micro/convection works differently. However, use this technique:

1. Prepare quiche as directed using an unbaked pie crust. Preheat convection to 450°F.

2. Bake quiche on convection heat only for about 10 minutes at 450°F. to cook the crust.

3. Reduce convection heat to 350°F., and use microwaves and convection heat combined to finish baking the filling. Bake until it is set in the center. I would estimate that in most ovens this last step would take 15 to 20 minutes.

Note: The microwave times above are for ovens with 600-700 watts of power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

As oldest surviving reptiles, turtles are built for survival

WASHINGTON — Their ancestors roamed the earth some 275 million years ago, even before the Appalachian Mountains were formed. The first recognizable member of the species appears in the fossil record about 185 million years ago, many eons before the peak of the dinosaurs. And today, long after the dinosaurs' demise, the turtle remains, its dome still perched on its back.

"Turtles seem to have hit on a good, conservative thing," says Dr. Archie Carr, a world authority on them. "Turtles clung to their basic structural design, while many other animals experimented their way into extinction."

Many unique features help the turtle survive in an increasingly hostile world, writes freshwater-turtle specialist Christopher P. White.

Very Flexible Neck

The turtle's protective shell actually consists of two parts — the top half, called the carapace, and the lower half, the plastron. Eight vertebrae in this reptile's neck, compared with the seven of most mammals, allow most turtles to fold their necks and retract into their shells. Most turtles also can retract all four limbs as well as their head between the two shells.

In addition to breathing through a set of lungs, freshwater turtles can use their mouth cavity in gill-like fashion. Water is drawn through the nostrils, oxygen absorbed in the mouth, and the water expelled. A few turtles can even absorb small amounts of oxygen through their skin while submerged in mud.

Aquatic turtles have little in common with the pokey tortoise that almost lost the race to the hare. They're extremely fast. The smooth softshell turtle, for example, can outswim the speedy brook trout. Webbing between toes increases swimming speed while allowing some species to walk underwater to browse.

The world's 180 kinds of freshwater turtles include animals patterned with dots, splashes, and hieroglyphs. The spotted turtle, for instance, is sprinkled with dozens of yellow polka dots. The markings on the juvenile map turtle resemble contours on an ancient chart.

Freshwater turtles vary in size from the stinkpot, a three-inch-long variety that exudes a musky fluid when disturbed, to the alligator snapper, a giant native of the south-central United States that can weigh up to 250 pounds.

Snaps Off Fingers

The bite of the alligator snapper is legendary. "Late one night 16 years ago," related a veteran Florida turtle hunter, "my son and I pulled an old 75-pound alligator snapper out of a swamp. Like a fool I put the snapper right behind me in the boat. After a time we got stuck in some reeds, so I reached back for a paddle and slam! — something hit my hand so fast I didn't know what had happened. Then all of a sudden there was blood everywhere, and my son was shouting, 'Dad, two of your fingers just dropped into the bottom of the boat!'"

Those who dare to peer into an alligator snapper's mouth would see a rose-colored wormlike appendage projecting from its tongue, used to lure minnows. Dissected stomachs of alligator snappers have turned up baby alligators, raccoons, snakes, acorns, shoes, and other turtles.

The increasingly rare alligator snapper is still legally hunted in many states. A few other turtle species, such as New England's Plymouth red-bellied turtle, are in more serious trouble. Considered endangered since 1980, a few hundred red-bellies survive in glacial ponds with the help of conservationists.

One threat to some freshwater turtles' survival is a slow rate of reproduction. Mating can be elaborate. Each species has a courtship ritual of its own. Common snapping turtles, for example, face each other and sweep their heads from side to side in opposite directions. After several minutes, the two turtles return their heads to dead center and stare at each other for a while before mating.

The male red-eared slider tickles the female's neck as he swims backward and she forward. The two eventually sink to the pond bottom, where they mate.

Egg laying can be nearly as ritualistic. Many females dig a chamber near water's edge, lay their eggs, and cover the nest. At least three varieties, however, practice triple clutching. They lay most of their eggs in a main nest and then add two smaller pockets for one or two eggs each. Some scientists believe the pockets are decoys, designed to distract predators from the main clutch, but Archie Carr has doubts.

"Two or three eggs in little side pockets aren't going to fool a hungry raccoon — they probably act more like a beacon," he says. "It's still a mystery, and I've been losing sleep over it for 30 years."

A Suwannee cooter, one of the world's 180 species of freshwater turtles, cruises the waters of Florida's Rainbow Run. Webbing between toes speeds turtles through water, and a gill-like mouth cavity allows them to breathe. Contemporaries of dinosaurs, turtles are the world's oldest surviving reptiles.

Lancaster Ladies Day Out program focuses on women in communications

MOUNT JOY — "Women in Communications" was the theme for this year's Lancaster County Farmers Association Ladies Day Out, held recently at the Country Table in Mount Joy.

Fifty women participated in the program which began with tours to local radio station Z-107 and television station WLYH in Lebanon. The women were treated to a behind-the-scenes look at how the stations operate and learned what goes into preparation for air time.

The afternoon speakers focused on ways these farm women can communicate their message through the media.

Angel Alexander, on-air announcer with Z-107, explained her route to becoming a radio personality, and told of some of the work radio announcers perform as part of their eight-hour work day. Alexander says she finds the job challenging "because you never know what's going to happen, what kind of phone calls you may get or if there will be an equipment breakdown."

Jan Carson, public relations department of Pennsylvania Farmers Association, explained her role in getting positive news stories about agriculture to the public. She encouraged the women to do their part on a local level, saying, "Don't let others speak for you."

Carson said, "Agriculture is the oldest, most stable industry in the country and it is the least understood. The public's perception of agriculture is distorted."

Sally Bair, correspondent for Lancaster Farming newspaper, encouraged the women to use the media in marketing their products, an increasingly important part of agriculture. Noting the importance of agriculture to the rest of the state's economy, Bair told them to challenge inaccurate stories and headlines in the media. She asked them to learn to communicate effectively to promote agriculture.

A surprise visitor to the luncheon was "Bear" John Moore, who brought a message about communicating through giving stuffed animals. Moore, who operates a shop with his wife, Phyllis, often visits hospitals delivering stuffed animals and spreading cheer. "When you take a teddy bear, you've communicated," he said.

Ginny Hess, committee member, encouraged all the women to register to vote as an important communications tool.

Speakers for Lancaster County Women's Association Ladies Day Out include, from left, Angel Alexander, Z-107 on-air announcer; Sally B. Bair, Lancaster Farming newspaper correspondent; and Jan Carson, public relations division, Pennsylvania Farmer's Association. The three were featured as part of the program which dealt with Women in Communications and included bus tours to Z-107 radio station and WLYH television studios.

Ann spends most of her free time working on the Calvin Kurtz dairy farm at R3 Elverson in preparation for her future enrollment at Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture.

Carol Kurtz, the daughter of Calvin and Esther Kurtz, Elverson R3, is a receptionist/secretary for a medical doctor. Since graduation from high school in 1984, she has spent some time studying at Penn State University Berks Campus and at the Community College of Philadelphia in the areas of psychology, sociology and communications.

While in high school, Carol served as secretary of the Twin Valley FFA, was active in student council and the black and white 4-H club. Her hobbies and interests include working with people, reading, jogging, music, children, sports and activities at the Hopewll-Reading Church. Carol's parents own and operate a 200-acre farm with 85 Holstein dairy cows.

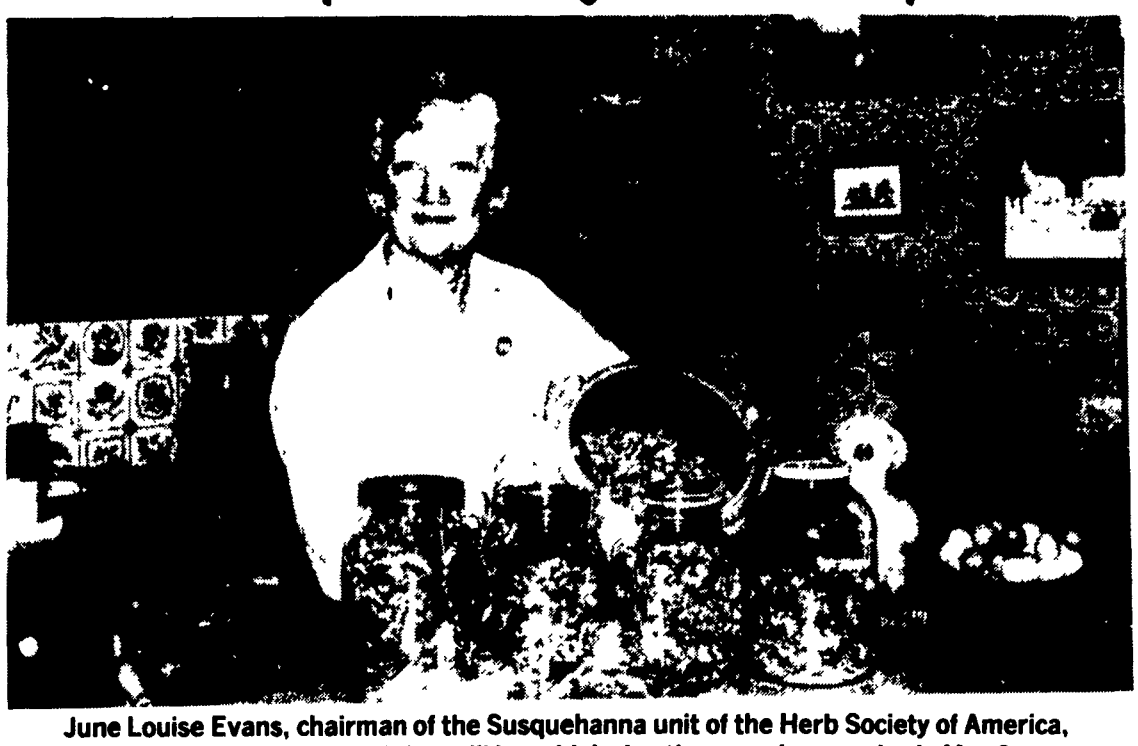
Herb Society members get set for May 3 sale



June Louise Evans, chairman of the Susquehanna unit of the Herb Society of America, displays some of the potpourri that will be sold during the group's annual sale May 3.

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — The many uses of herbs both in cooking and throughout the home have been rediscovered in recent years. Many rural homes now boast herb gardens and homemakers are learning what their predecessors knew long ago — herbs are fun to grow and have a multitude of uses.

A number of herb enthusiasts in Lancaster County have joined together to form the Susquehanna Unit of the Herb Society of America. Members of the local unit maintain an herb garden at Rock Ford Plantation, the home of General Hand, adjutant general to George Washington during the Revolutionary War.

One of their projects is an annual herb sale. This year's sale is scheduled for May 3 at Rock Ford Plantation from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The sale will offer culinary, fragrant, dye, insecticide specialty herb plants, books and gardening items, potpourri and an educational exhibit that will include a display of herb jellies.

Proceeds from the sale go toward maintaining the garden at Rock Ford and to an herb garden at the National Arboretum in Washington D.C. Some of the plants to be sold are from members' gardens, while others come from the Rock Ford garden, unit chairman June Louise Evans reports.

June Louise has informal gardens in the flower beds around her home and spends a great deal of time cultivating her hobby. "I put a lot of time into it," she says.

However, she adds, it isn't necessary to spend a lot of time to have a successful herb garden. She devotes the time because she enjoys it so much, and goes as far as saying that she enjoys weeding. "It's just fantastic to weed an herb garden," she noted.

Some of the herbs from June Louise's and fellow members' gardens went into making potpourri, a fragrant mixture of dried flower petals, dried herbs and spices, for the sale.

Last summer members dried some of the blossoms, herbs and herb foilage from their gardens in preparation for potpourri production. Among those herbs and flowers included in the unit's homemade potpourri are lemon verbina, an herb with an intense lemon scent; scented geraniums, which bear smaller, more delicate flowers than regular garden geraniums; rosemary; mint; sage; sweet cicely, which produces an ainse type of scent; and lavender.

Herb Society member Bonnie Miller inspects the herbs in her garden to see how well they weathered the winter.

Dried flower petals of many perennials and annuals such as marigolds, zinnias and daffodils were also dried and added to the potpourri. Although many of the flower petals lose much of their scent in the drying process, they add a nice touch of color to the mixture, society member Bonnie Miller said.

Bonnie suggests the air drying method in preparing herbs and flowers for use in potpourri. "It's better not to dry things in the oven if you want scent," she advises.

To air dry, lay materials on screens or hang them in small bunches. Placing the materials on a cookie sheet on top the refrigerator is a good drying method because of the heat and air circulation. Drying time depends on a number of factors, but usually takes between three days and week, Bonnie said.

The dry ingredients are then mixed together and a fixative is added to blend and prolong the scent life of the herbs, flowers and spices. A variety of fixatives are available and include orris root, ground cinnamon and cloves, oak moss and ambergris, a synthetic material.

Society members also added a variety of oils, including rose, lemon verbina and violet, to enhance the dried materials and to prolong the life of the potpourri.

"To have something that is really going to last, oils really help," June Louise said. By mixing oils, you can achieve a unique scent, she continued.

In preparing the potpourri for the sale, members "dropped and sniffed, dropped and sniffed," June Louise reports, until the scent was just right. "We really had neat, neat scents," she noted.

Recipes for potpourri abound, Bonnie said, but duplicating a scent is quite difficult.

Bonnie said she uses potpourri throughout her home to perfume the air. She keeps an open container of potpourri in the powder room and in any other area she wishes to scent. However, she cautioned, potpourri works best in small areas, like the powder room or a clothes closet.

The more the potpourri is exposed to the air, the more quickly it will lose its scent. One way of reviving the scent is to rub the dried materials between your fingers. Another way is to add more oil.

Anyone interested in purchasing some of the society's potpourri or herbs is invited to attend their sale May 3. Rock Ford Plantation is located in the Lancaster County Park off South Duke Street in Lancaster.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

There are emotional moments in every woman's life.

Her first date. Her wedding day. Days she gives birth. A child's first day of school.

And smaller clashes with trauma: finding the cat sampling the bake sale chocolate cake, a dishwasher clogging which turns your kitchen floor into a swamp, or getting a flat tire when you're already late for a wedding and dressed in your new cream-colored, dry-clean-only, best summer suit.

Not to mention moving into a new handbag.

Fewer possessions are more precious and critical to a woman's life than her handbag. A woman's whole identity is encapsulated within the leather (or imitation) confines of her purse.

The closest male possession comparable to a handbag is a toolbox, briefcase, or maybe a fishing tackle box.

Males, naturally, are quick to poke fun at handbags. They are also the first to request that this or that be stashed in them at opportune times. Such things as candy bars, road maps, and a list of part numbers for the haybine.

Women, on the other hand, are frowned upon if they poke fun at the size or contents of a toolbox, or question the need to add more ingredients to a well-stocked tackle box. Still, for supplying impromptu family necessities, such as baby diapers, Band-Aids or a safety pin, briefcases, toolboxes, and tackle boxes are generally useless.

Unless a woman spends her life on a social party circuit (no one I know), a fairly-sized purse is a necessity. Sections, preferably with zipper or snap closure to keep the contents therein are desireable and allow at least a hint of organization. Color, style, and a designer name are optional. The basic idea, though, is a compact, attractive, lightweight unit with the storage capacity of a four-drawer filing cabinet, and U-Haul portability.

It is with extreme reluctance that I personally move from a well-broken, comfortable purse, which feels like home, into a handbag stranger. A familiar purse is like a familiar room — you can find your way around it in the dark. With a new one, you need a directory, index, or road map.

As you probably guessed by now, I have recently dealt with this stressful lifechange. Just getting through the paper stuffing in the new handbag proved to be a time consuming procedure.

Someone should introduce national legislation to prevent 600 acres or so of trees annually from being chopped down to provide paper for stuffing in new handbags. (This practice is actually encouraged by a Political Action Committee of Litterbugs, Inc., the same people who bring you fast food packaging containers.)

The real adventurous part of moving into a new handbag is the retrieval and relocation process. The deciding which goes where, and with what, and how. A wallet in the checkbook section? Or is that too fat to fit? Lipsticks with a compact, or with the comb and brush? Is there room for the little pack of makeup tissues, several sets of keys and the screwdriver sometimes needed to jiggle the car door mechanism.

And somewhere you must leave a corner to stash the equipment part you'll be asked to pick up on your next trip to town.

One economic plus: by the time you have conquered the move from one purse to another, you will have discovered enough throwaway junk to keep the neighborhood trash service in business for another week or two. And in my case, enough shavings and straw from the last cattle show to bed a calf hutch.

If you feel about this matter as I do, consider signing up with me as a charter member of HA! (Handbags Anonymous). In place of handbags, we'll carry large, color-coordinated toolboxes. Stocked with chewing gum, marker pens, a pack of Lifesavers and list of family members' jeans sizes.

Just call it another step toward equal rights.

Lebanon Ladies Day Out features town and country home tour

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LEBANON — Members of the Lebanon County Farmer's Association Women's Committee were treated to a tour of town and country homes during their annual Ladies Day Out program Thursday.

Among the homes featured on the tour was the 125-acre dairy farm owned by Allen and Carol Nolt of 340 Royal Road, Lebanon. The Nolts recently remodeled the kitchen of their 13-room stone farmhouse, removing part of the ceiling to make a loft.

"I don't think there's any room we haven't done something to," Carol noted. The farm has been in Carol's family for 50 years and she and Allen have lived there for 15 years. The home was built in 1818 and the barn was constructed two years later, Allen said.

Allen does nearly all of the remodeling work during the winter months, but when summer comes he is busy with crops. And milking the family's 58 Holsteins keeps him busy year round.

"Since we can do it ourselves, it cut the cost quite a bit," Allen said.

The loft in the kitchen was Allen's idea, Carol said. And although she is quite happy with the final results, she admits she did have some reservations about the project at the beginning.

One evening as she sat amid the partially completed project and the resulting dust, she relates, she was feeling especially apprehensive about the loft idea. So, she called her friend and business partner Pam Wentling, who came over to reassure Carol.

"I thought it was terrific when I came," Pam says. She did, however, suggest opening up a staircase to allow access to the loft, and the Nolts took her advice. The process involved tearing out a wall, but the completed project has justified the extra work.

The railing at the edge of the loft, which keeps the unwary visitor from falling, came from the corn crib, Allen notes. Throughout their restoration project, the Nolts have been careful to use original materials whenever possible.

Allen sandblasted the now-exposed beams and covered them with a sealer. Careful scrutiny of the loft ceiling will reveal the names of former residents who carved their identities there. "That's part of the oldness of the home," Carol remarks.

Carol has artistically arranged antique tools and country crafts in the loft, and dried plants hang from the exposed beams. A century-old log doll house and barn that are an heirloom from Allen's family, are also displayed in the loft.

This 100-year-old log doll house and barn are displayed in the loft of the Nolt's recently remodeled kitchen. The heirlooms have been in Allen Nolt's family for many years.

Carol Nolt, left, and business partner Pam Wentling recently opened Country Lane Gifts in what was once the summer kitchen on the Nolt farm. The gift shop was included on the Lebanon Ladies Day Out tour.

A newly-opened gift shop adjacent to the home is another of Allen's remodeling projects. What was once a summer kitchen has become Country Lane Gifts, a rustic, country gift shop filled with handmade crafts. Carol and her business partner Pam Wentling opened the shop March 29.

Renovations on the summer kitchen began in November (as soon as the corn was in) and continued throughout the winter, Allen said. Pam's husband, David, and Carol's father, Wilmer Ziegler, worked alongside Allen, removing walls, adding beams from the corn barn to the second-floor ceiling, papering, painting and drywalling.

Previously, the Nolts had sold apples from the summerhouse. Now, Carol said, the apple business will be moved to the barn.

"Between milking cows and this, it was quite a chore," Allen said. But he is obviously not complaining as he surveys the tastefully decorated shop.

The idea for the shop came from Carol, who invited her faithful shopping buddy, Pam, to join her in developing the idea. "I think she's visited every gift shop in a 200-mile radius," Pam teases Carol. The two have toured many craft shops and craft fairs together, collecting business cards of talented craftsmen.

Through their visits, though, Carol and Pam found few country gift shops in Lebanon County and decided their shop would be meeting a need. Once the renovations were underway, they started using the business cards they had collected to contact craftsmen to consign their wares to Country Lane Gifts.

The variety of handmade country crafts the shop offers is nearly endless and includes candles, potpourri, tin, Pennsylvania pottery, stuffed animals, hand-woven items, wreaths, and wall hangings.

"We're trying to feature the crafts of the local people, because they're very talented," Pam said.

In the few weeks the shop has been open, response has been quite good, Carol reports. They are planning a grand opening celebration May 1 through 3 and will offer door prizes, refreshments and a 20 percent discount off wire products.

The shop is open Thursdays from 10 a.m to 8 p.m., Fridays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. To reach the shop from

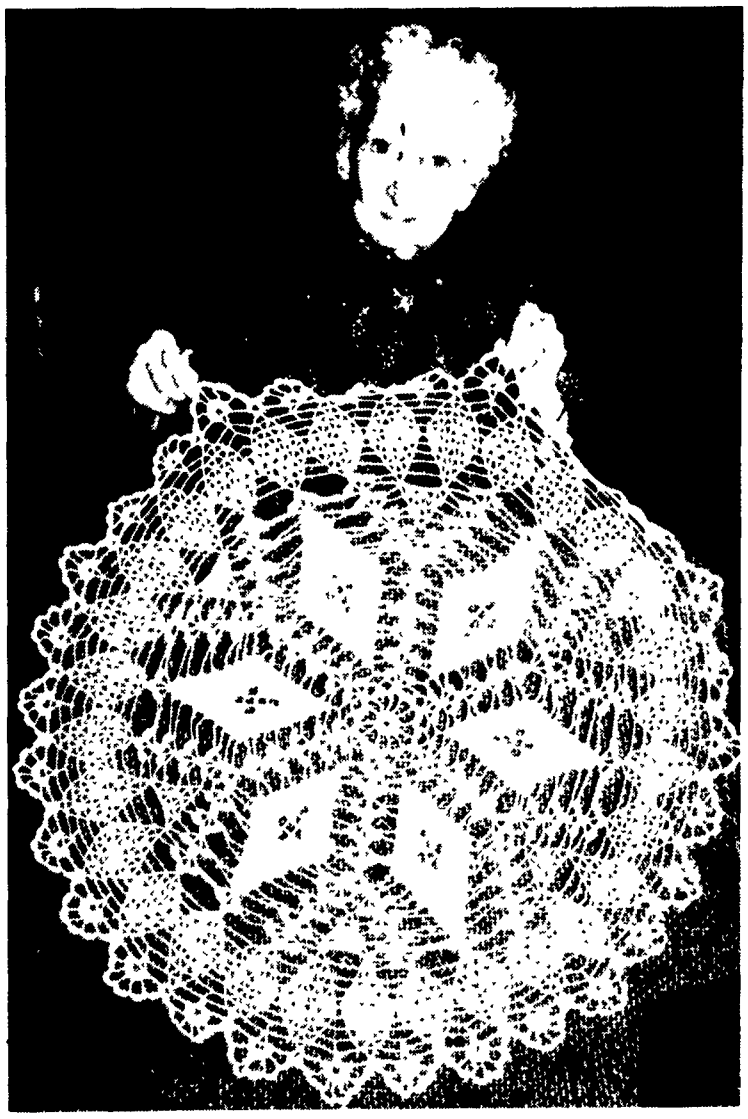
Experienced crocheter creates Last Supper mural with hook and thread

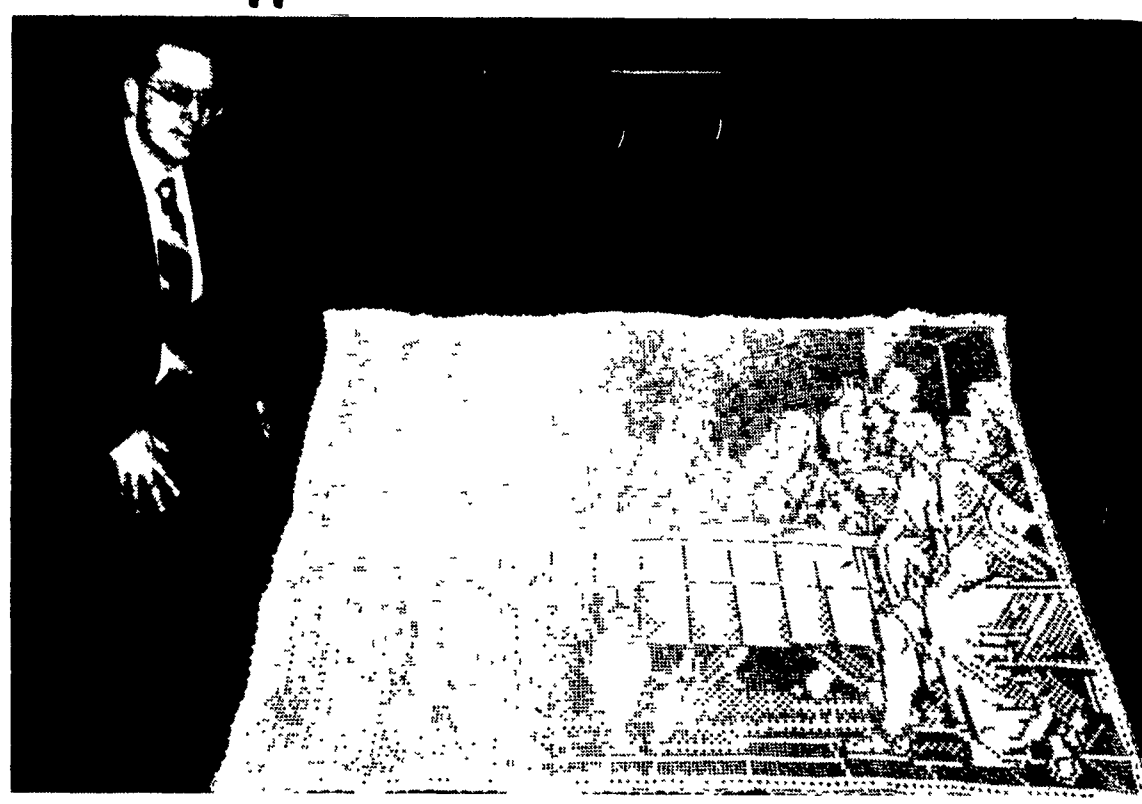
BY BARBARA MILLER
Staff Correspondent

WILLIAMSPORT – Mrs. Laura Eddinger, 86, of 1533 Memorial Avenue couldn't crochet just one; instead she crocheted five murals of the Last Supper like the one she recently presented to the First Baptist Church in Williamsport.

Each mural measures 62x58 inches and was created by using a 100-year-old communion cloth from the Duboistown Methodist Church as a pattern. Crocheted along the left side of the mural are the name of the church, the pastor's name, year, and Mrs. Eddinger's initials. Mrs. Eddinger completed the last mural in one month.



Mrs. Laura Eddinger displays her "cross and crown of thorns" pattern doily.



Rev. Allen H. Goss, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Williamsport, shows the hand-crocheted mural of the Last Supper, Mrs. Laura Eddinger recently presented to the church.

According to Mrs. Eddinger, Rev. John Piper, Jr. of Grace United Methodist Church, Williamsport, for whom she had crocheted a doily centerpiece, first approached her last July asking her to crochet a mural of the Last Supper using the old communion cloth as a pattern for his church.

"Oh, he was just in love with it," Mrs. Eddinger exclaimed, reporting Rev. Piper's reaction. So much so that Rev. Piper requested an additional mural for himself, which Mrs. Eddinger produced.

One thing led to another and Mrs. Eddinger decided to crochet a mural for the Lutheran Church at Cogan Station in memory of her husband and her mother-in-law. The fourth mural was sent to Bozman, MT and was done, Mrs. Eddinger said, in memory of the Snay family. The fifth mural, of course, was completed for the First Baptist Church.

"It was tedious to do it," Mrs. Eddinger said, "Every row was different, but I knew Rev. Piper and Rev. Goss wanted them."

We Can Grow 4-H Club receives grant

BURLINGTON, VT — The We Can Grow 4-H Club of York is one of 75 clubs selected to receive 1986 National Youth Garden Grants.

The grant package, sponsored by National Gardening Association, contains seeds, tools, gardening equipment, the Gardening Association's "Youth Gardening Book" and "Your Nutritious Garden" and a one-year NGA membership. Materials in each package supply about 20 gardeners.

Grant winners were chosen based on their outstanding quality of leadership and programming, high level of community support and need for gardening tools, seeds and supplies.

The package, valued at over $600, was made possible by contributions from Ames Tool Company of Parkersburg, W.Va.; Burpee Seed Company of Warminster, Pa.; and Safer, Inc. of Wellesley, Mass.

Last Supper mural

She says she held the old communion cloth on her lap and "put gold pins in the row so I wouldn't get mixed up." This painstaking procedure was repeated for each of the murals.

Mrs. Eddinger started her task in July and had completed the five murals by Christmas despite several battles with the flu.

"I had the flu a couple times but I kept on working," she noted.

And the best part of crocheting the murals?

"Getting it done," says Mrs. Eddinger with absolutely no hesitation and a quick laugh.

Joan Alter, Mrs. Eddinger's daughter with whom she lives, says her mother has always crocheted, but began in earnest when she retired from a garment factory. She has crocheted various doilies and bureau scarves, aprons and pockets, tablecloths, and even Barbie doll items. She is presently engrossed in another project for Rev. Piper, a crocheted canopy for a bed.

Mrs. Alter says her mother seldom accepts money for her efforts. According to Rev. Goss when Mrs. Eddinger presented the mural to his church she remarked, "I hope this brings lots of happiness to this church."

"And it has," Rev. Goss affirmed.

Lancaster Society 2

Members of Lancaster Society 2 held their April meeting at the home of Louella Low of Manheim.

Loretta Steiner gave the details of the bus trip planned for June 4. Questions should be directed to 665-4546.

Members voted to contribute money to help in sponsoring the dairy princess and to support the Ronald Metzler Fund of Lititz.

Fourteen society members plan to attend the Spring Rally at the York Fairgrounds May 28.

The Society will support the county project, which is the American Red Cross . Disaster Fund. The state project requires that an item be made using a Pennsylvania product. Five members volunteered to work at the Lancaster-Lebanon IU 13.

The Society received a thank you from Ruth Waltz of the Manheim Evangelical Congregational Church for the donation honoring the memory of Society sister Mabel A. Hackart.

A mother/daughter banquet is scheduled for May 10 at noon at Penn's Pantry on Route 72 near Manheim.

Lancaster Society 8

David Dumeyer, a research analyst on the Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, addressed members of Lancaster Society 8 during their April 9 meeting.

Bunny Funk conducted devotional time and Anna Mae Derr read the minutes. Hostesses were Vera Frey, Bunny Funk and Florence Musser.

Members will meet at the Mount Joy Mennonite Church May 17 at 1 p.m. to travel to Luther Acres where Molly Bear will show pictures.

Lancaster Society 22

Members of Lancaster Society 22 traveled to Longwood Gardens last week to enjoy the display of spring flowers throughout the gardens and buildings. The group will be entertained this month by Society 25 at the Farm and Home Center.

The May meeting will feature a fashion show for mothers and daughters on May 13 at 7 p.m. at Faith E.C. Church, 2124 Old Philadelphia Pike. Plans were made for those who wish to travel to the Spring Rally May 28 at York.

Lebanon Society 14

Lebanon Society 14 met April 15 at the United Church of Christ in Campbelltown. Lebanon Societies 15, 19 and 20 attended as invited guests.

Society 14 performed a skit and the group played a number of games. Refreshments were served.

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon Society 20 met recently at the Lebanon Community Library, where the library director showed slides and explained the functions and funding of the new building.

Members later took a tour of the new facilities and participated in a question and answer session.

During a short business meeting, members decided to give a donation to Lebanon County Dairy Promotions. Eight members will be attending the Spring Rally in York.

Following the meeting, members went to Funck's Family Restaurant for refreshments.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

– Oat seeding is well underway across the state.

– The program for the 79th annual meeting of the American Guernsey Cattle Club is scheduled for Philadelphia. Part of this program included a trip to Lancaster for a chicken barbecue and the national convention sale.

– A milestone in progress of both animal agriculture and the commercial feed industry was reached this week when the 50 millionth ton of Purina chow was manufactured in St. Louis.

– Lancaster's oldest building and loan association was paying 4% interest on installment shares and 3% on full paid shares.

– The New Holland Branch of Lancaster County Farm Bureau Cooperative was destroyed by fire. The cause of the fire is undetermined, although it is believed transients may have been to blame.

– Fertility tests on turkey eggs assure Pennsylvania's standing as a high quality turkey producing state, according to State Secretary of Agriculture William F. Henning.

New Idea adds rectangular baler

COLDWATER, Ohio — New Idea Farm Equipment Division recently released the latest rectangular baler model in their growing haytool line. Upon the introduction of the new unit, Tom Kinzenbaw, vice president of marketing, noted that the Model 551 Rectangular Baler was added to the New Idea line as part of their continuing commitment to provide quality haytools at prices that are affordable in today's agricultural economy.

New Idea's 551 Rectangular Baler provides reliable baling in a wide variety of crops. The 87 strokes-per-minute plunger is fed through a 271 square-inch feed opening providing good capacity and efficient performance.

The Model 551 features a dual packer finger design system that provides positive material movement into the bale chamber with chain driven primary and secondary packer fingers. The 24- to 44-inch bales are tied with a Deering-type knotter that works well with either Sisal or plastic twine. The four-spool capacity twine box is fully enclosed as standard equipment.

Another standard feature on the 551 Rectangular Baler is the constant velocity power take off that provides smooth, quiet operation and easy maneuverability in sharp turns.

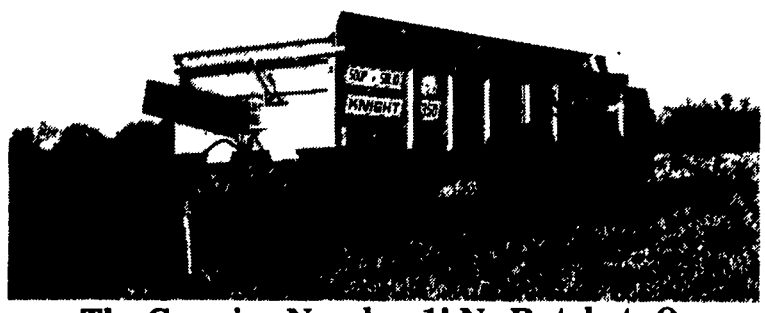
Featuring Copper-Bearing Steel To Resist Serious Rusting

"350 & 410 SOUPer SOLID" MANURE SPREADERS IN STOCK w/HYD. LIFT



The Growing Number 1! No Ratchets Or Belts To Trouble You

The combination of the hydraulic tilt, hydraulic rear gate, and lower spinner beater allows for a controlled spread and fast unloading
Wide spreader beaters are made of heavy auger type with ripper prongs which eliminates chunks of unpulverized manure piles laying around in the field.

THE WORK HORSE

Here is a NEW skid loader that will haul, dig, move palletized material, trench, load, scrape, and more, with an SAE operating capacity of 2,050 pounds!

It's the new Gehl 6620, with a 60 hp diesel powerplant plus all the operational and convenience features you'd expect from a Gehl loader. And it outreaches every other loader in its size category.

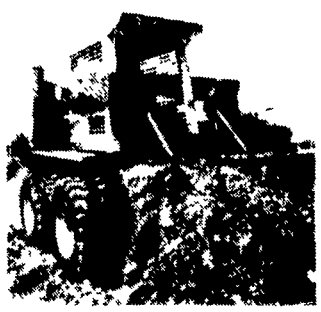
This is a totally universal loader that's designed to handle your toughest jobs with brute strength while you maintain fine-tuned control over its entire operation.

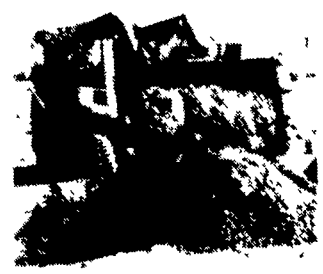
Self-leveling lift action lets you concentrate on where you want to put your load. Split, side-mounted T-bar Load-Trak controls, the easiest-to-learn system available today. Secondary operator restraint seat bar with padded arm rests. Full instrumentation.

Front hydraulics make the 6620 compatible with a wide variety of attachments. Roll-back ROPS/FOPS for easy power and drive train accessiblity.

With years of skid loader ancestry, the 6620 is a powerful machine that could only come from Gehl. Take a performance test drive. You'll never settle for conventional skid loader performance again.

Lift. Dig. Scoop. Doze. Load. Push. Scrape. Haul. Trench. And Enjoy.





UNMATCHED SERVICEABILITY

Rollback ROPS/FOPS

The entire ROPS/FOPS structure rolls back and out of the way and locks in up position for full and easy access to drive and hydraulic components. This structure is spring counter-balanced for easy, one-man rollback. The wiring harness stays intact for better serviceability.

Once the ROPS/FOPS is rolled back the engine and driveline are fully accessible for service. No crowding or extraneous plumbing; just well laid-out. Designed with the service technician in mind.

Case International 94 Series Tractors

Exclusive Intelligence Center makes you and your tractor more productive

The exclusive Intelligence Center enables you to work more efficiently by monitoring vital tractor functions. Travel speed, engine and PTO RPM, total acres worked, acres per hour and much more are available in instant digital readouts. The optional True Ground Speed Sensor even tells you the percent of the wheel slip so you can select the most efficient gear and weight your tractor properly. It all adds up to getting more work out of each hour of time and squeezing more work out of each gallon of fuel.

All this, plus: High-torque power that's teamed with a smooth 12-speed power shift transmission for a job-right speed on every job (24-speed power shift is optional for the 2394, 2594); CON TROL PFC hydraulics that reduce parasitic hp loss; and the comfort and convenience that only the Silent Guardian cab can provide.

Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

S & S Silo Service Has Experience
Over 160 Silos Have Been Relined With Shotcrete

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

By-Products for Hogs

Folks in the swine business know that hogs will eat just about anything. Sometimes we can use that to our advantage, especially when cheap by-products are available. But you decide that by-products will solve all your feed-bill headaches, think about the feedstuff you plan to use.

Will the hogs eat the by-product? Even if the stuff is free it won't do you much good if the pigs leave it in the feeder.

What nutrients are in the by-product? Does the nutrient content vary? How much water does it contain?

Is the by-product practical to handle? You need a plan for getting the material to the farm and to the pigs. If it's easily trucked and augered, you'll have a lot less aggravation.

What does the by-product cost? It ought to be pretty cheap, since even free ingredients can get expensive when transportation costs are figured in. That's especially true with wet ingredients.

What will the by-product save you? After you've figured all the costs, you should have a good idea of the total expense to finish a hog. The by-product might save you so little money that the juice is hardly worth the squeezing.

Is there any danger of bacterial contamination? If it's an animal by-product, bacterial contamination is a potential problem. Daily feeding may be necessary to prevent spoilage.

Why is the by-product being discarded? Be sure there are no toxins or components that could cause problems. For example, milk products may contain antibiotics.

What's the effect on the carcass? Some by-products, like waste french frier oil, can produce an oily carcass if you're not careful. Fish products may create an odor in the carcass.

What are the effects on performance? Many times you can substitute by-products up to a point — then performance drops. Keep your eyes open and your scales operating so you can recognize the problem if it appears.

What are the effects on your image and the image of the industry? Often there is a fine line between by-products and garbage. If your by-product resembles garbage and your set-up is visible to the public, you may not be doing yourself or the industry any favors.

What are your state's regulations? Pennsylvania requires an inspection and a permit to feed any type of by-product. So our state is even more important than the USDA.

FEEDING SUGGESTIONS

Bakery by-products — crackers, cookies, pretzels and potato chips are probably the most practical by-product you can use. They're palatable. You can handle them like a conventional ingredient. And you can treat these by-products like corn in the ration — by making pound-for-pound substitutions for the grain. Watch performance and salt levels when you use more than 800 pounds per ton.

Liquid whey is available from many dairy processors because of its high drying cost. You can offer whey through the water system instead of water, and feed a corn ration fortified only with vitamins and minerals. Research shows that pigs from 40 pounds to market weight using this scheme perform similar to those on a normal corn soy diet. That could save you $8 per head en feed costs.

Keep your eye on spoilage. And even at 48 per head saved, be sure you can justify the added transportation and handling.

Waste milk can be fed at the rate of 1 gallon per head per day. Offer a normal ration in the feeder. As pigs grow older they'll adjust their own diet by increasing their intake from the feeder.

Waste fat is an excellent energy source since it contains two and a quarter times the calories of either proteins or carbohydrates. You'll see maximum benefit at about 10 percent added fat. More than six or seven percent added fat will increase carcass fat and if the fat is unsaturated (oil) the carcass will become oily.

Meat by-products, unless they're cooked and dried, always bring with them the possibility of bacterial contamination — especially Salmonella. But they're high in protein and any bone present, provided it's finely ground, will be a good source of calcium and phosphorous.

Cracked eggs can be fed to hogs but it's important to cook them first to destroy a biotin inhibitor. For hogs weighing 100 to 220 pounds, offer eight eggs per head per day and a ration containing 1850 pounds corn, 100 pounds soybean meal, and 50 pounds of vitamins and minerals.

Food industry by-products can be a significant part of your feeeding program. But before you get into them in a big way, make sure you know all you can about the material that's available. Have it analyzed. Be sure it's practical for your operation. And use a little at first — on a limited number of hogs.

Poultrymen advised not to keep pet birds

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has reminded commercial poultrymen to refrain from buying caged birds in view of a case of Exotic Newcastle Disease in New Jersey.

Dr. Max A. VanBuskirk, director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, said the disease was diagnosed in a parrot sold by a New Jersey pet wholesaler who also does business in Pennsylvania.

Exotic Newcastle Disease is a highly-contagious avian respiratory disease, which necessitated the destruction of 12 million birds in California in 1972.

"Poultry owners should understand that buying imported pet birds is not in their best interests or those of the industry," said VanBuskirk.

Such caution is warranted given the difficulty of determining the origin and health of these birds, according to VanBuskirk.

The wholesaler sold birds to several distributors in Pennsylvania, and those birds are being checked for the disease by avian health experts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Veterinary Services. Results so far have been negative.

3 farms team for York pig, lamb sale

YORK — The Rodger Bankert Family of Hanover teamed with Newville's Pine Haven Farm and Clearview Acres of York to host the Supreme Club Pig and Lamb Sale at the York Fairgrounds on April 11.

Project pigs were a popular item, with Bankert's 65 head averaging $88 each. Shawn Fairman, a 4-H'er from DuBois, paid the day's top feeder pig price of $260 for a Duroc-Poland cross out of the day's second top selling litter. The high selling litter contained seven Duroc-Berkshire crossbreds that averaged $127.

Bankert also sold seven Duroc and Chester White service boars that averaged $288. The sale's six registered Duroc weanling gilts averaged $85, and seven bred gilts averaged $230.

Total sale volume for all the swine was $11,700.

Pine Haven Farm consigned a group of Suffolk wethers sired by their embryo transplant ram, The Right Move. The top selling wether went to Gene Turner of Woodbine, Maryland for $240. The sale's only Suffolk ewe lamb brought a top bid of $170. The first five lambs in this group averaged $204.

Clear View Acres sold the top Dorset wether to the McCrumb family of Mars, Pa., for $85.

A total of 11 lambs went under auctioneer Harry Bachman's gavel averaging $135 each.

Alfred judging team wins in Canada

'85 wool payments estimated $103 million

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sheep producers will receive about $103 million in federal incentive payments on wool and lambs they sold in 1985, according to Milton Hertz, acting administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The 1985 support price for shorn wool is $1.65 per pound, determined in accordance with the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, and the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act. The 1985 national average price for shorn wool was 63.3 cents a pound, 101.7 cents less than the support price, Hertz said. Dividing the support price by the average market price results in a 1985 payment rate of 160.7 percent. The payment rate is the amount required to bring the average price received by producers up to the support price. The payment rate for 1984 was 107.5 percent.

For mohair, the 1985 average market price was $3.45 and support price $4.43, making the payment rate 28.4 percent, compared to 20.2 percent in 1984, Hertz said.

Individual producers' payments are determined by multiplying the payment rates by the net dollar returns from wool and mohair sales.

Producers will receive $4.07 per hundredweight in federal payments as compensation for unshorn lambs they sold or slaughtered in 1985. The payment is based on the shorn wool payment rate, the average weight of wool per hundredweight of lambs and the price of lamb's wool relative to the national average price for shorn wool, Hertz said.

Commercial ewes to dominate Vermont Sheep Sale

NEW HAVEN, Vt. — As many as 200 commercial ewe lambs will cross the auction block at the sixth Vermont Sheep Sale scheduled for July 12, at the Addison County Field Days grounds in New Haven, Vermont.

While purebred and wool breed sheep will also be available, sale auctioneer Ken Brubaker of Westtown, Pa., reports that quality commercial ewes are expected to dominate the event.

Brubaker cited Rocco Enterprises' current sheep venture, as well as more aggressive marketing by the industry as a whole, as reasons for the increased popularity of commercial lamb production.

The deadline for consignment is June 14. Owners of registered and wool ewe consignments who wish to be included in a pre-sale catalog available after June 1, must register by May 1. Fees are $10 per head in registered and wool classes, and $10 per pen of three or fewer commercial ewes.

For registration forms contact Michael Claudon, RD 2, Box 3550, Middlebury, Vt., 05753, phone: 802-545-2249.

Livestock Ledger

Grass Is Not Enough

It is extremely tempting to let beef cows go to pasture as soon as the grass begins to green up. However, this is the time in the production cycle for most cows when they continue to need a high level of nutrition because most of them are nursing calves and are into the breeding season or will be going into the breeding season soon.

Suckling cows need to maintain their weight or actually gain some weight at this critical time. Putting cows on immature grass too early will cut the energy level to the point that the cows will possibly lose weight. They may stop cycling and the whole process could disrupt planned conception in the early part of the breeding season. Therefore, even if cows prefer those first few blades of green grass, we advise that you continue to feed them on hay or silage or a combination until permanent pasture is far enough along to really provide adequate nutrition.

Cattle on real young, early washy grass actually crave some dry matter and you will find that they will eat hay better than you think, even though that grass looks pretty good! If cows are thin, particularly first-calf heifers, it may be a paying proposition to add some grain to the ration right along with the roughage so they will settle quickly when bred A1 or exposed to a bull.

May 1 is usually a good date to keep in mind for turning cattle out to pasture in southeast Pennsylvania.

Delmarva Chicken Festival to attract 20,000

GEORGETOWN, Del. – The Delmarva Chicken Festival, an annual celebration honoring the Delmarva Peninsula's well-known bird, made its first appearance in 1948 in Georgetown, Delaware. This year, the 38th festival returns to the county seat of Sussex with activities scheduled for June 6 and 7 at Delaware Technical and Community College, Southern Campus.

Expected to draw an estimated 20,000 visitors, the event will offer attractions ranging from tempting fried chicken to toe-tapping music and children's rides. From the 12 noon opening ceremonies on Friday, June 6, festival goers will enjoy antiques, arts, crafts, a flea market, commercial exhibits and an exhibit depicting the poultry industry past and present.

The Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest will launch activities on Saturday, June 7. Cooks from 12 northeastern states and the District of Columbia will prepare their prize-winning entries in competition for a 10-day Hawaiian vacation for two, and many other prizes.

Other attractions will include surrey rides; an antique auto display; Ronald McDonald's magic show; and Chicken Capers, a light-hearted series of competitions including an egg toss, chicken scratch and chicken plucking contest.

The Delmarva Chicken Festival is sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. and is hosted this year by Delaware Technical and Community College and the citizens of Georgetown.

For a complete schedule of events, contact Delmarva Poultry, R.D. 2, Box 47, Georgetown, DE 19947 (302)856-9037.

USDA approves new location for animal exports

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has approved Wilmington, Ohio, as a port of embarkation for animals undergoing mandatory federal health inspection before they are exported to a foreign country.

"We are taking this action at the request of Wilmington's Airborne Express Animal Export Facility," said Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. "We have determined that this facility meets our regulatory requirements and can provide all the necessary services."

To become an approved port of embarkation, a port must be able to provide accommodations where animals can be boarded and cared for during an inspection process that ensures the animals are in good condition and meet the health requirements of the receiving country.

The addition of Wilmington brings the number of U.S. ports of embarkation to 26. "We are pleased that we can now provide inspection services more conveniently for those exporting animals from the north-central United States," Hawkins said.

Baby pigs face 'acid test' at weaning

FORT WAYNE, Ind. – The newly-weaned pig faces digestive upsets as its digestive tract adapts from sow's milk to dry feed. But, recent research shows these post-weaning problems can be minimized by acidifying the baby pig's gut.

A more acid stomach in the baby pig is desired to attain the most efficient enzyme activity for improved digestion and nutrient utilization. In addition, a high acid level in the pig's stomach suppresses the growth of E. coli bacteria to help prevent scours. Because the baby pig cannot easily regulate the acid level of its gut, problems like poor growth, scours and high mortality are often seen in early-weaned pigs.

"Controlled research studies have indicated that if you acidify the feed, you'll see a better average daily gain and better feed efficiency in baby pigs," says Dr. Steve Pollmann, director of swine feeds for Central Soya Company, Inc.

"When you wean a pig, you're loading its system with physiological and nutritional challenges that are very difficult to handle. As a result, the pH of the baby pig's gut will increase," Pollmann notes. "By reducing the pH of the baby pig's stomach, you'll face fewer problems."

To determine the acidity of a feed, Central Soya has developed "The Acid Test" kit, a simple procedure which can be done in the field with a kit available from Master Mix representatives.

To conduct The Acid Test, soak a small amount of feed in distilled water. Using distilled water is important because some hard water is alkaline, and will change the results of the test. After a short time, insert a strip of pH-sensitive paper into the sample, then read the result by comparing the color of the strip to the chart included with the test. A lower pH, less than 5.5, would be one indicator of a good baby pig feed.

"We designed this test because our research shows the acidity of a baby pig feed is critical to the growth of the pig," Pollmann says.

More information on "The Acid Test" is available through local Master Mix feed dealers, or by calling Central Soya direct at 1-800-348-1943, and requesting "The Acid Test."

Penn State offers weed fact sheet series

UNIVERSITY PARK – According to its scientific name, Ambrosia artemisiifolia may be "food for the gods," but it causes nausea and sore mouths in livestock, and watery eyes and general misery in humans. Common ragweed is just one of the weeds you can learn to identify and control with up-to-date information in a new series of Weed Identification Fact Sheets developed by Penn State extension specialists in weed science.

Each identification fact sheet describes a single weed and includes sections on seedling description, biology, similar species, natural history and control. Fact sheets are color coded according to family.

"Our recommendations for controls emphasize cultural practices and methods to use at the pre-emergent and seedline stages," says Betsy Wertz, agricultural writer and project coordinator. Specific chemical controls are not stressed, since these recommendations change from year to year.

"We've tried to develop useful and readable materials on the taxonomy of weeds for farmers, home gardeners, agribusinesses, teachers, students and extension agents," commented W. Thomas Lanini extension weed scientist who developed and directed the first phase of the project. "There has been little practical information available in such a concentrated and accessible form," he continued. Many of the fact sheets can also be used for wildflower identification.

The first group of 16 weed identification fact sheets is now available and will be followed by a second group of 16 in a few months. About 48 weed identification fact sheets will be complete by next year, with perhaps over 100 developed before the project is over.

To order a set of weed identification fact sheets, contact your Penn State County Cooperative Extension Service Office or write to: Publications Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802. There is a charge of $5 for the first set of 16. This price includes postage and handling.

Upjohn offers swine arthritis report

KALAMAZOO, Mich. – "Infectious arthritis costs swine producers $60 million annually," according to a technical services veterinarian featured in a swine managment report recently published by The Upjohn Company. "It's a major cause of lameness in hogs, with producers suffering monetary losses due to reduced rate of gain and inefficient feed conversion."

The cost-effective management practices that several U.S. swine producers have adopted are outlined in this report.

For a copy of the report write: Swine Infectious Arthritis Report, 2, The Upjohn Company, P.O. Box 5087, Kalamazoo, MI 49001-5087.

Massey to invest $31.5 million in tractor production

DES MOINES, IA. – The downturn in tractor demand the past few years has presented a relentless challenge to improve tractor manufacturing efficiency and reduce costs.

To meet this challenge, Massey-Ferguson, the western world's largest producer of tractors, is investing over $31.5 million in its plant for the MF 200 series tractors to improve utilization of plant capacity, streamline production, and increase efficiency.

The plant, located in Coventry, England, is the world's largest for tractors. In 1985 nearly 6,700 tractors made at this plant were sold through the Massey-Ferguson North American sales office in Des Moines, Iowa.

Scott Glover, MF's director of supply, said: "Since 1976, the industry has suffered from oversupply and lagging demand. We needed to match our tractor facilities to the lower sales volumes, while at the same time making better quality products at lower cost to compete effectively with the more than 50 other makers of tractors around the world. These were the key objectives of a strategic plan we put in place two years ago to secure the future of our tractor manufacturing base," Glover explained.

Due to be completed next year, the project includes:

- a major re-layout of machinery and assembly areas using the latest manufacturing technology.
- modernization of "goods receiving" and component storage.
- a new generation of computerized systems for planning and monitoring production.
- relocation of the engineering center and consolidation of all machining operations into the main plant.

Two major contributions to the manufacturing innovation now in operation are a new installation for assembling transmissions using automated guided vehicles, and a robot paint-spraying facility.

Automated Guided Vehicles

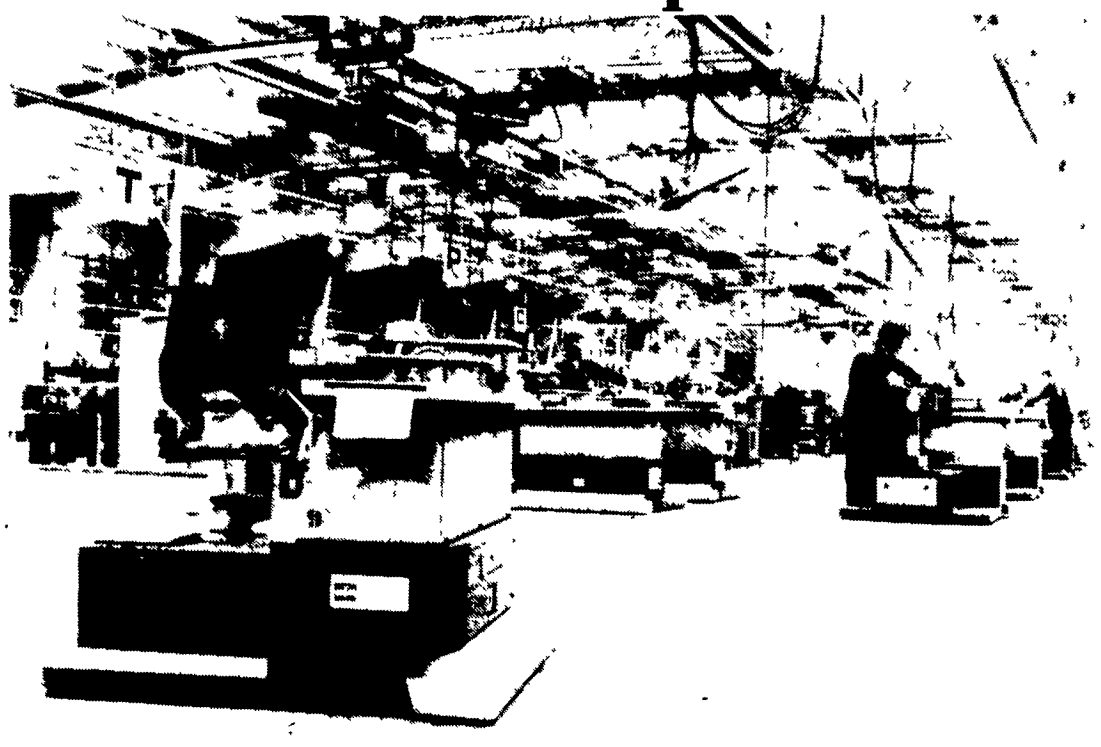
Under the command of a computer system, each driverless vehicle locates and carries all the parts needed to make a transmission, acts as a mobile work station for fitters to assemble the transmission, and delivers the completed unit to test rigs.

The vehicles are controlled by signals from a wire 'loop' buried beneath the floor. An electronic 'eye' and other safety devices on the vehicle ensure that if it should be about to run into anything or anyone, it will stop instantly.

Robot Painters

The robot paint sprayers can see and recognize up to 100 different shapes and sizes of components, and can paint each one as accurately and expertly as a skilled human operator.

As components enter the paint booth, a line-scan camera identifies them and activates a computerized program to operate the robot arm.



Computer controlled automated guided vehicles handle much of the "leg work" at Massey-Ferguson's tractor plant located in Coventry, England.

Initially, the robots are "taught" how to paint each individual component by a skilled operator using the spray gun manually. Each precise move is repeated automatically by the robot every time the particular component is identified by the camera.

Components are accepted in any sequence, and the robots can make any change in color of the paint needed from component to component.

"All developments in-process or completed are all part of a program of inter-related activities to help us achieve lower product costs and maintain competitive prices," said Glover.

"Equally important is the flexibility they give to our manufacturing, which will help improve our delivery performance by increasing the speed with which we can respond to changes in market demand and build tractors to the precise specifications wanted by customers."

Production

Occupying an 83-acre site, the plant has more than 1.5 million square feet of floor space specializing in the production of MF's popular 200 series tractors - economic, medium specification machines in the power range most widely used by the world's farmers– approximately 35 to 90 h.p.

The plant accounts for over half of Massey-Ferguson's world-wide production of tractors, which last year totaled nearly 112,000 units.

Farm Credit officials see ag problems 'leveling off'

HUNT VALLEY, Md. – While the portrait of gloom and doom is being painted for American agribusiness in today's world, nearly 700 participants at the annual district-wide meeting of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore listened to a different song.

During the three days of meetings from March 10 through 12, officials from the 26 affiliated Federal Land Bank/Production Credit Associations and the Baltimore Banks' board of directors heard panel discussions and speakers draw a hardworking picture of success for one of only two profitable districts of the Farm Credit System throughout the nation.

The nine Farm Credit Associations of Pennsylvania sent their own presidents and directors as representatives, while two Pennsylvanians appeared in one of the panel discussions giving their associations' viewpoint on handling and implementing new marketing strategies.

Jay Rush, president of the York Association, and William England, chairman of the board of directors of the West Central Association, participated with three other panelists from the Baltimore Farm Credit District. Rush and England both agreed that the needs of the borrowers must be met in a timely, economic fashion with marketing as a tool to reach borrowers.

"We try to view marketing as the total process of providing credit and related services to farmers and other eligible applicants in such a manner that both their stated and unstated needs are met now and for the foreseeable future," said Rush, with England adding "We should help our borrowers make more money."

The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore serve not only Pennsylvania but Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. One of 12 nationwide districts of the Farm Credit System, the Baltimore Banks are comprised of three separate banking institutions. The Federal Land Bank (FLB) and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank (FICB) offer long-term and short-term financing along with other financial services to individual farmers and rural home owners through 26 local Farm Credit Associations including the nine associations in Pennsylvania. The third bank within the organization, the Bank for Cooperatives (BC), serves only agricultural cooperatives.

Making his first public appearance as the new head of the Farm Credit Corporation of American (FCCA) at the meeting, H. Brent Beesley took the opportunity to pat the Baltimore District on the back for a job well-done. Chartered last year, the FCCA's purpose is that of strategic planning and central policy making for the entire Farm Credit System.

"Well-managed banks like Baltimore have a legitimate interest in how other districts price their loans," siad Beesley referring to some of the ailing districts that the Baltimore Banks helped by contributing in excess of $13 million during the past year. "If one district's going to help pay another's bills, you want a voice in setting policy."

Cutting the 1985 yearly earnings in half, the Baltimore Banks were only one of two Farm Credit System districts that operated at a profit in 1985. With the amount contributed and additional operating cost, the Banks showed a $12.6 million profit.

While the Baltimore District cannot afford to function with blinders under current economic conditions, the District can enjoy one of the more secure positions, making future change a little less traumatic. Gene L. Swackhamer, President of the Baltimore Banks, reflected on the condition of the District.

"Adversity will not disappear from agriculture in 1986 and the Farm Credit System will not be exempt from its share of the stress," said Swackhamer, "but we are well positioned to adjust. We have a strong capital base, a proven record of quality borrowers, and a lean and cost-effective operation."

Even though the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore will continue to aid troubled districts should assistance be necessary, Swackhamer firmly believes the problems are leveling off. Midwest land prices are bottoming and the dawn of lower energy costs will help operating budgets.

Lewisburg FmHA office announces promotions

LEWISBURG – Two recent promotions in the position of agricultural management specialist occurred in the Lewisburg County office of Farmers Home Administration. Mildred Turner was promoted to county supervisor.

Turner comes to Lewisburg with extensive training and experience in administering the rural housing and farmer programs in FmHA. Her recent past assignment was as an assistant county supervisor in the Mifflintown County Office of Juniata/Mifflin Counites.

Turner is a graduate of Penn State University, where she earned a Masters degree in Animal Industry from the College of Agriculture. She received a Bachelor's Degree from Murray State University, Kentucky, and an Associate Degree from Alfred State College, Alfred, New York.

"Mille" as she is known, is a native of Elmira, New York, but now resides in Centre County. She is married and has one son.

Joining Turner as assistant county supervisor is William Massey. Massey was transferred from the Wellsboro County office in Tioga County. He is a graduate of the University of Delaware, where he was awarded a Masters degree in Plant Science. He has owned a wholesale nursery business as well as sold real estate.

Bill is a native of Williamsport, but now resides in Franklin County. He is married and has two sons, ages 16 and 13.

Snell fence tape has high visibility

SAN ANTONIO, TX – Visibility is the key to the success of any kind of fence. With that in mind, the people at Snell Power Fence Systems have introduced a highly visible electric fence tape.

Constructed of heavy duty polypropylene, Snell's unique Polytape is bright orange in color, half an inch wide and hard to miss in any pasture situation. Five strands of stainless steel wire, woven into the Polytape, carry electric current down the fence. Once livestock associate the colorful tape with electric shock, they respect a single strand of Polytape by itself or attached to another fence.

Snell's new Polytape is used primarily for temporary electric fencing functions such as strip grazing and crop protection. However, Polytape's high visibility makes it ideal for fencing horses. One or more strands of Polytape running along the top of a barbed or net wire make it easy for horses to see a fence and judge its distance.

Snell's Polytape is available in 655' rolls from Power Fence dealers throughout the United States. For information on Polytape, and other fencing innovations, contact Snell Systems, Inc. at P.O. Box 17769, San Antonio, Texas 78217. The phone number is (512)494-5211. Outside of Texas call toll free: (800)531-5908.

Case Skid-Steer features diesel power

RACINE, Wisc. – Case's new Model 1845C Uni-Loader skid-steer loader is suitable for a wide variety of agricultural applications. Features that distinguish the Model 1845C from its predecessor, the Model 1845B, are a new state-of-the-art Case diesel engine, the Case Coupler to speed attachment changes, and improved safety features.

This new skid-steer loader can be used as a "chore machine" to speed up production and replace hand labor. The 1845C provides a high degree of maneuverability in the cramped operating conditions commonly found on the farm.

The new Case 4-390 4-cylinder diesel engine is built for long service life. It is designed to maintain 2800 r.p.m., but operates in the 1845C at 2100 r.p.m. Operating for most of its life at 75 percent of full designed r.p.m. puts less stress on the engine, resulting in long-term reliability and reduced down time. High fuel efficiency provides a low overall operating costs.

The new Case Coupler makes it possible for the 1845C operator to change machine attachments quickly, resulting in more work time and less preparation time on each job. The Coupler also allows the 1845Cto use competitive attachments.

Attachments include dirt buckets, utility buckets, snow and litter buckets, a backhoe and a pallet fork. Tire options include 750 x 16 Chevron tread tires, 1200 x 16.5 lug-type flotation tires and 650 x 16 non-pneumatic-type tires.

The new Case "control lock-out" system is a response to customer requests to the industry for additional safety features. After buckling himself into his seat, the operator must fold down the two short control levers in front of him. This prevents him from leaving the seat while in operation. If the "control lock-out" system is not engaged, the machine cannot operate.

The Case Model 1845C is distinguished from its predecessor, the Model 1845B, by a new state-of-the-art Case diesel engine.

Gehl introduces all-purpose manure spreader

WEST BEND, Wisc. – Gehl Company's new 300 Series Scavenger II all-purpose manure spreaders incorporate a heavy duty square tube auger for better performance when spreading all types of manure.

"The square-tube auger works better than the conventional round augers because it creates a unique 'pulse action' to thoroughly break up and blend manure and lessen the chance for wrapping," remarks Brad Boncher, material handling product manager.

"Hydraulic power helps the auger solve two of the biggest spreading problems," Boncher adds. The operator can move the auger up and down to chop through bridging. And, in winter, he can park the auger in the 'up' position, then power down to slice through frozen material."

Another feature of Gehl's new 300 Series is the Variflo discharge gate which delivers the exact application rate needed – from top dressing to heavy springtime spreading. "This eliminates uneven spreads that leave 'hot spots' all over the field," Boncher explains.

Three spreader sizes, 196, 345 and 596 bushels, are offered in the new 300 Series line. Gehl's full ten year warranty against rust-through on the entire spreader tank.

In addition to the 300 Series, Gehl's manure spreader line includes the 100 Series for solid manure; the 500 Series Slurry Special for semi-solid manure; and the 700 Series for liquid manure handling.

Gehl's 300-Series spreader features a square-tube auger that helps to move manure more smoothly, according to the manufacturer.

Pioneer calls for increased silage inoculant regulation

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa – Verifiable, unbiased research data should be required to support all advertising and label claims for silage additive products and all live bacteria products should be monitored regularly to assure their viability and adherence to label claims.

"Requirements such as these would put the burden of proof of efficacy on the manufacturer — not on the consumer where it currently lies," says Bob Wichmann, president of the Eastern Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Inoculated silage ferments more quickly than uninoculated silage. This results in improved dry matter retention and faster stabilization which, in turn leads to longer bunk life, improved palatability and nutrient preservation.

However, because several of the companies or individuals involved in the industry have failed to regulate themselves, a cloud of suspicion hangs over the entire industry.

"Pioneer is actively pursuing the registration and substantiation of all claims and formation of guidelines for the registration of all products which fall in the category of silage additives," Wichmann says.

"One step in the right direction has been to list the guaranteed number of colony forming units (CFUs) in a pound of product on the tag. Pioneer is currently doing this and urges other companies to follow suit.

"Another area we are addressing is providing the customer with as much information on the limits within which the product will perform, and information on good silage management.

"A requirement that all live bacteria products be monitored at regular intervals will ensure their viability and the number of CFUs noted on the tag. This will force all producers to improve their handling of live products and help guarantee quality products for all consumers.

"Currently, Canada is one of very few countries closely regulating the sale of silage inoculants. They are accomplishing this by requiring all companies seeking registration to undergo tests to prove the efficacy of their product. To date, Pioneer brand silage inoculant is one of only a few that have complied with these regulations and been granted full registration," Wichmann concludes.

SCS seeks 'Earth Team' volunteers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – The USDA's Soil Conservation Service is seeking volunteers to help implement soil and water conservation practices near their own communities.

Eileen Gough, state coordinator for the national Earth Team campaign, said that young people and others without a lot of work experience often find that their volunteer work with SCS helps in their future careers.

"Both government and private employers consider volunteer work to be qualifying experience for comparable positions," said Gough.

Gough said volunteers often make highly visible contributions to the landscape in their communities and they always learn more about the places where they live. When volunteers assist teachers in working with pupils on outdoor classroom conservation projects, for example, they help give youngsters a head start in learning about resource conservation that will be needed in future years.

Those who want to volunteer to work with SCS or a cooperating group should call their nearest SCS office. The office is listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government, Department of Agriculture. Applicants should tell the SCS district conservationist or other staff what work they already are prepared to do, or what type of work they would like to do.

Or They may also call a special toll-free number, 1-800-THE-SOIL, to receive information from the Soil Conservation Society of America and be referred to the SCS or other office that may need their skills.

SCS offices will ask prospective volunteers to fill out application forms. Applicants are notified as soon as they are matched with and accepted for tasks and duties in the offices where they want to work, Gough said.

Maryland water quality meeting slated

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Planners, public officials, local health officers and other persons dealing with water resource issues in Maryland are invited to attend a symposium on "Groundwater Protection" at either of two locations.

The day's schedule at each location includes registration and coffee from 8 to 9 a.m., with the program running from 9 to 4:30. A $16 registration fee includes lunch, refreshments and educational materials.

Registration forms and copies of the program are available from offices of the Cooperative Extension Service throughout Maryland. The registration deadline is April 23. Last-minute registrants will be accommodated at the meeting site on a space-available basis.

For the southern Maryland meeting, call Dean F. Tuthill, at the University of Maryland in College Park, 301-454-3226.

For the lower Eastern Shore meeting, call William L. Magette, at the College Park campus, 301-454-3901.

Buyout to save $9 billion

The U.S. Government will be paying 14,000 farmers $1.8 billion to slaughter or export their dairy cattle, and to stay out of dairying for five years. That's only part of the story.

The termination of these 14,000 dairy herds, youngstock and all, will prevent – rather permanently – the 12.3 billion lbs. of milk, produced annually by these herds, from ever entering the U.S. market, not just for one year, but forever. To the U.S. Government this represents an annual savings of about $2.1 billion in the purchase of surplus dairy products, or $10.5 billion in five years. It costs the Government about $17 to purchase, store and handle 100 lbs. of surplus milk in the form of other dairy products.

About 38% of the $1.8 billion to be paid to the farmers participating in the program will come from assessments levied upon the remainder of the dairymen who continue to produce milk. These assessments will total about $684 million.

The $1.8 billion farmers will receive is taxable income. For purpose of illustration, let's assume these farmers will be in a 20 percent tax bracket. That being the case, $360 million will be returned to the Government in the form of taxes. Thus, dairymen will be contributing about 1 billion of the $1.8 billion; the Government's share would be about $800 million.

To help prevent slaughtered dairy cattle from depressing the beef market, the Government is also required to purchase an extra 400 million lbs. of red meat during the next five years. I don't know what it costs the Government to buy a pound of red meat. If it is $2 per pound, the total cost would be $800 million. Thus, the Government's total real cost might be about $1.6 billion (a net payment of $800 million to dairymen plus $800 million for meat).

What this really means is, the Government will be buying (preventing) five years worth of surplus production, which would have cost them $10.5 billion. They will be spending about $1.6 billion to accomplish this. That represents a potential savings of approximately $8.9 billion; with inflation, it could be more than this.

Not All Profit

The average farmer participating in the dairy herd buyout program and 50 cows; he will receive a total of about $131,000 in payments over a five year period of time. However, that is not all profit.

Requiring a farmer to sell his dairy herd for non-dairy purposes is similar to asking someone to sell their home for half price. With the exception of a few cattle that are exported, slaughtered cattle are selling for much less than their true dairy value. To an averge farmer this could be a $30 to 50,000 loss of potential income.

The rental value and sale value of the farm are also reduced since the dairy facilities cannot be used for dairy purposes for five years. In addition, farm values in general, are depressed at the present time. If he sells his farm now, he takes an additional licking on price. Because of depressed farm values, most participants will probably elect to keep their farms.

If they keep their farm they can either rent it to someone else or continue to operate it themselves. If they rent out the farm, they may not be able to rent out the buildings because of the restrictions on use of the dairy facilities. This loss in rental income could total $30 - 50,000 in five years. In addition to his, they'll have the expense of taxes, insurance and maintenance on buildings, even though they are not being used. Many of them will also have some debt servicing costs. Many farmers plan to use these payments to reduce debt loads.

If they operate the farm themselves, they may have additional costs if they convert to a new enterprise. And, as they venture into a new enterprise, they may not show a profit for the first year or two. Right now, it is very difficult to find profitable alternatives in agriculture.

These were a few of the many factors that participating farmers had to consider as they prepared and submitted bids for being "bought out." As one might expect these bids varied considerably from farm to farm.

The Government's goal was to terminate about 12 billion pounds of milk production potential by accepting reasonable buyout bids from farmers. This, they accomplished. The top bid price accepted was $22.50 per cwt. The average bid price accepted was $14.88, $2.12 less than the $17 it normally costs the Government for each 100 pounds of surplus milk.

Many of the dairymen, whose buyout bids were accepted, are hard working, honest individuals who are genuinely interested in their community and the welfare of their neighbors.

They are also concerned about the dairy industry, the milk surplus situation, and the Governmental cost of purchasing surplus dairy products and supporting milk prices. They realize if they continue to dairy they are contributing to the surplus problem. To exit from dairying, with no restrictions, they know that their cows and their facilities would probably be used by someone else to continue producing milk; that wouldn't help correct the surplus problem.

Dairying has provided these families a livelihood over the years. Now, they consider it a good deed to participate in the dairy herd buyout program, to return a favor to the industry in its time of need so it in turn can help provide a future for other families interested in dairying. They are not looking to get rich off of the Government; they only want to recover some of the extra costs that are associated with getting out of dairying under the strict guidelines set by the Government.

Unfortunately, the integrity of many of these individuals is now being questioned, and their privacy is being invaded. That's mighty unfair to those who are honestly trying to help the dairy situation.

Whether or not the dairy herd buyout program will overcome the milk surplus situation remains to be seen. One thing is certain, the herds that have been slaughtered won't be creating any milk surplusses! Future surplusses will depend largely upon the number of additional dairymen who will exit from the business, and on milk production from those who remain in business.

As the dairy economy tightens, many dairymen find it necessary to increase milk output in an effort to keep current on the bills. If surplusses continue the milk support price will be triggered downward. Further reductions, or assessments, can be expected too as a result of Gramm-Rudman legislation. As prices continue to fall, more and more dairymen will exit. That may help offset increased production from other dairymen. Some people would like to implement a system of supply management; others prefer a free market. What lies ahead remains to be seen.

Farm Talk

By

Jerry Webb

Two words that are important in today's low profit agricultural are innovation and change. Farmers who seem to be making it through this difficult period know the meaning of those words.

There has been a lot of talk about the change in agriculture but a lot of farmers haven't changed. They are operating just about the way they did 20 or 30 years ago. Oh, there have been some slight modifications but the practices they learned from their fathers are still being used. The philosophies ingrained into their youthful minds stayed with them, and for the most part served them well. But when the easy profits disappeared those farmers unwilling to change found it difficult going.

I've heard many farmers ask when are things going to get back to the way they used to be. And the fact is that they aren't. Agriculture has changed and farmers must change also. Those farmers who have not been able to adjust to change are the ones folding up in this difficult economy. On the other hand, those farmers who saw the change and made changes themselves are still on the farm.

Add to that the word, innovation, and you find some farmers who are doing pretty well. They are doing well because they have been able to look at their operation on a regular basis and make adjustments. They found new sources of financing. Other places to sell their produce at a better price. They stopped listening to those suppliers who were looking for a quick buck. And they've found ways to make money that were unheard of a decade or two ago.

Farmers in this area are in an awkward position because they have choices. Unlike their counterparts in Kansas, Nebraska or South Dakota they aren't locked into a two- or three- crop agriculture. Their harvest goes beyond corn and soybeans to include other crops and other ways to make money.

The farm magazines these days are full of interesting little ideas that farmers are trying-specialty crops, unusual livestock, innovative marketing techniques. Obviously all of them won't work on any one farm. But farmers are making them work in various ways across the country. Most of the ideas require more time and more management. Some of them require additional investments. They all require change and innovation.

It's easy to look to vegetable crops for new money on mid-Atlantic farms. But that market can be even worse than corn and soybean. Vegetables are hard to grow. They require considerable expense. Most of them don't store very readily and there is a very definite limited marketing opportunity.

And yet there are plenty of farmers who have started to raise some vegetables. Through good fortune and persistence they've found a specialty crop and a speciality market that suits their operation. And they are making it pay. Or they are taking some land and some roughage that's not being used otherwise and growing some beef animals. And then instead of just sending them off to market they're getting involved in the freezer beef business. Or they're raising a few lambs or some veal calves or turkeys or table eggs.

Some farmers operate roadside stands as simple as a picnic table and umbrella or as complicated as a small supermarket. A fairly modest roadside marketing operation and a few acres of fruits and vegetables can do a lot for sagging farm income and an under employment situation.

Then there are some of the people-oriented things that can be done on the farm like providing farm vacations, selling hunting rights, operating a camp ground and so on. Look at the farms that are only minutes away from the beaches on Delmarva that could provide low cost accomodations for beach goers along with the added advantage of a farm setting. It's not for everyone but it might work for a few. There are other farms especially those with access to water that could provide camp sites. Plenty of people are looking for a place to camp that's away from the crowded campgrounds–a place to set up a travel trailer for the summer with fishing and boating and a little open space near by.

I read about a farmer in the mid-West who is on the outskirts of a city. He's turned part of his farm into a picnic ground and meeting site, and it's become a big business with thousands of people every year booking his facilities for company picnics, family reunions, retreats and so on.

The list of innovative ways that farmers can make money goes on and on. It's something that each farmer has to figure out for himself. What can he do beyond the usual crop rotation to improve his piece of the action. It demands a willingness to change, to try something new, to take on an enterprise that might even fail. But why not? A couple of acres of some speciality crop isn't going to be the difference between success and failure. At least not the first year. But it could be a start, a learning opportunity, a chance to get the feet wet before taking the big plunge. And it could tell a farmer whether he's cut out for some of these ways to make money.

There's only so much cost cutting a farmer can do. After he's cut all the costs possible he still needs to be able to make a living. And that's where a lot of farmers in this area find themselves these days. They've listened to all of the good information on how to grow corn and soybeans the most economical way. They've gotten rid of high priced ground, rented or owned that was unprofitable. They've sold off the excess equipment and they still don't see how they're going to make a living with current and projected incomes from corn and soybeans.

That's when it's time for innovation and change. There are other enterprises, other crops, other efforts that a farmer can do but it's a very personal thing. Something each farmer must do for himself. Something each farm family must consider. They can't all grow horseradish or provide vacation facilities.

They can't all grow corn and soybeans either.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

The Complexity of Simplifying Taxes

Do you remember tax simplification? It was what was supposed to happen when Congress started to rewrite the tax laws. Well, in the process of simplifying the tax laws, Congress found that those laws became even more unfair than they are now. As a result the various committees and subcommittees responsible for tax laws started to build fairness into the system. End result, someone just quietly buried the simplification part of the tax law.

Now the Senate committees responsible for their part of the tax law are adding more fairness measures to their version of the new law. When it all gets done no one will be able to do his own income taxes. But do not be dismayed, because no one else will be able to prepare the tax return correctly either. That will leave a lot of room for negotiating between the IRS and the poor old taxpayer -- so what else is new.

Some examples: Do you remember how much you got this year as a personal exemption? That is right, each of us got $1040 (an odd amount based on the inflation factor). Under the new proposed law it will be $2000, maybe, under certain circumstances. The personal exemption may be a negotiable amount depending on whether you itemize deductions or not and on your income. The personal exemption may be reduced to $1500 and for some people with high incomes may be eliminated.

Actually, personal exemptions are eliminated under the present law for anyone who runs into the alternative minimum tax. Over 65s and blind will not get an extra exemption any more. They may get $600 extra standard deduction (probably via another tax table) if they do not itemize. Otherwise, no breaks at all.

Example number two: Itemizing appears to take on an extra dimension in complexity. Some things such as personal taxes may be eliminated. Those with high income (over $57,000 for married couples and over $35,000 for single people) may have to reduce all itemized deductions by 10 percent or so. In other words, at $56,999 itemizing would be more advantageous than at $57,000. Not many farm families will be affected by this, but it does illustrate how the tax reform law will continue to complicate things. So much for those who said the new tax law would put tax practioneers out of business.

Others that might affect farmers -- All buildings would be depreciated for 30 years by the straight line method; investment credit would be eliminated as of 2-28-86; the excluded part of long term capital gains would be reduced from the present 60 percent to 52.94 percent in 1987 and 42.86 percent in 1988. The proposal to eliminate capital gains treatment for business assets such as dairy and breeding stock has not been publically discussed by the Senate committees. Nor has the provision that dairy farmers will have to start capitalizing expenses due to raising heifers been discussed for public consumption. Capitalizing means not counting the expense until the animal freshens then depreciating that animal over a period of time.

Those of you who do a lot of embryo transplants should be aware that the IRS is considering disallowing you the transplant expense. They are presently studying their previous position that did allow those expenses to be taken with the idea of telling you that those expenses will have to be capitalized in the future. This has not yet taken affect and the IRS may decide that it is more trouble than it is worth, but be aware that it may happen.

NOBODY HAS MORE HORSEPOWER UNDER FORTY.

Under forty horses, nobody sells more tractors than we do. One reason is simple. We give you more choices.

There are sixteen compact sizes, each a different model. One of them should fit you perfectly. And once you settle on the horsepower, there are still more choices.

Pick special options like 4-wheel drive, power steering or a hydraulic shuttle transmission. Or choose a Kubota-made implement, the best match for any of our Kubota tractors.

There are, however, a couple of decisions we've made for you.

For example, Kubota's own liquid-cooled diesel engine comes standard in every model. An advanced design, it's built for efficient operation. So a little horsepower works like more.

We've also chosen the color.

KUBOTA
Nothing like it on earth.

Garden depends on temperature, crops

MEDIA – Each year gardeners ask: "When should I plant my garden?" Jeff Jabco, Delaware County Cooperative Extension agricultural agent points out that there are a number of answers to that question and the answer depends on temperature.

By May 15, southern and southeastern sections of the state are generally free from frosty weather. By May 20, there is little danger of frost in most of Pennsylvania. As late as June 1, frost may occur in high altitudes of central and northern Pennsylvania.

Vegetable crops may be classified into four groups according to their temperature requirements. Very hardy crops include the vegetables that are not injured by severe midwinter freezing, such as asparagus, horseradish, parsnip, rhubarb, salsify and winter onion.

Hardy crops thrive during cool weather and will withstand frosts of spring and early fall, but not severe freezing. Such crops are cabbage, cauliflower, beet, carrot, turnip, lettuce, endive, pea, onion, radish and spinach. All crops falling in either the very hardy or hardy groups may be planted safely as early in the spring so you can prepare the ground.

Tender crops are those which are quickly injured by frost, such as snap bean, sweet corn, cucumber, squash and tomato.

Very tender crops are those that may be injured by continued cool weather without frost. These crops are lima bean, eggplant, cantaloupe and pepper.

Tender-very crops should not be planted until mid May in our area. Many of the vegetables in the tender and very tender classifications will benefit from plastic mulches. Besides controlling weeds and conserving moisture, the plastic mulch will generally tend to warm the soil.

NEW REVOLUTIONARY PRODUCT

PHILCO ENGINE LIFE EXTENDER

PREVENTS THE FORMATION OF SULFURIC ACID IN ENGINES.

There is enough sulfur in 20 gals. of gas and fuel oil to produce 8 oz. of sulfuric acid when combined with moisture and oxygen in engines. This causes harmful gums, varnish and sludge that plugs up carburetors, PCV valves, spark plugs, rings, sticks and burns valves forms abrasive deposits, increases wear, eats away at mufflers and tail pipes, reduces power and fuel efficiency.

For large gas and diesel engines to small lawn mowers and chain saws. Cleans fuel lines, injectors, carburetors, and lubricates upper cylinder area. Users report:

A. 100 to 200% increased spark plug life.
B. Up to 100,000 miles without tune up.
C. 10 to 15% increased fuel mileage.
D. Quick starting - longer battery life.
E. Mufflers & tail pipes last longer.
F. Increased engine life & lower maintenance.
